Only One Step.
Your Highest Ambition.
Glory for Italy.
Misguided Gandhi.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

WHEN Capt. Lowenstein, Belgian financier, fell or stepped from his private airplane, crossing the North Sea, he caused many European stocks to fall in sympathy. The multimillionaire, one of many financial mushrooms that grew out of the war, failed to get a loan here in America, when he came in spectacular fashion, with assorted valets, air pilots, chauffeurs, "lords and ladies" in his train. That failure depressed him.

VERY dramatic must have been that moment when the man that once offered fifty millions to the Belgian government went to the outer door of his private airplane and stepped into space.

IN that instant he left behind this world and all for which he had struggled, his greatest company that, at news of his death, dropped in value $150,000,000, his fleet of flying ships, his town and country houses, stables, kennels, servants, sycophants and proud position.

So must we all leave everything with or without our willing.

WHAT is your highest ambition? What is the highest ambition any man could have?

The ambition describes the man. One deserving young gentleman's ambition was to have a successful delicatessen store.

WOLFE'S ambition was to take Quebec. Napoleon wanted to turn Mohammedan, ride on an elephant and rule the world from Asia. He went to St. Helena instead.

HAPPY and unhappy he who realizes his ambition. Jean Mussier for 20 years "nursed an ambition to go over Niagara Falls." He did it, in a rubber ball, and hardly knows what to do with himself now. That's the worst of getting what you want.

MORE flying glory for Italy. Ferrarin and del Prete, now holding the world's longest water flight record, had crossed the Atlantic and landed near Natal, in Brazil, yesterday on their way to Rio de Janeiro.

Italy leads the world in flying enterprise.

TEN THOUSAND mourners, 200 automobiles, tons of flowers, accompanied Frankie Uale to his grave, while thousands wept. He was generous with money that he made quickly in the modern bootlegging industry and kindred trades.

Driving his fine Lincoln car, trailed by another car, his head was riddled with heavy slugs. His friends complain that he hadn't a chance and promise to riddle several of his enemies. They will doubtless keep the promise.

GHANDI, the Indian fanatic, always sincere, always misled, sometimes starves himself, sometimes preaches no cooperation with Britain, sometimes urges rebellion and always advocates going back from machinery to the hand loom.

JUST now he is "fomenting" a revolt, terrorizing 80,000 villagers that dare not oppose him.

Britain will not worry. In a few days Mohammedans, in religious procession playing music, will march past a Hindu temple. The Hindus religiously opposed to music, will rush out, kill some Mohammedans. Then the natives, Moslem and Hindu, will forget all about Britain. It always works.

THE death, yesterday, of Mrs. Fanny Garrison Villard, recalls one of the noble names in American history. Her father, William Lloyd Garrison, was a brave figure in the long fight against slavery. Constantly he risked death for his convictions. And his daughter, dead at the age of 83, shared her father's dangers courageously.

THE government puts out a long-term bond issue at 3⅜ per cent. Little fish could borrow yesterday for their speculative needs at 5 per cent. The 10 per cent bugaboo seemed dead and couleur de rose was once more the Wall Street tint.

STOCK list, as you'll notice this morning, was one long string of plus signs; old favorites started climbing, and the bears, warned here yesterday morning, passed unpleasant hours.

JULY FOURTH has become fairly sane. On this Fourth only 220 were killed, and fireworks killed only 15 of them; 112 were drowned, 50 were killed by automobiles, 4 by airplanes, and 18 by heat.

Lockjaw cases, however, are still to be counted. They do not die so quickly.

He Caught It!

HUNT DEAD IN FLOOD HERE

Reports of numerous fatalities in the flood Wednesday night in Long Run and Jack's Run, McKeesport, and Beck's Run, South Side, were not confirmed today, despite rumors that motorists and campers in that region were said to be missing. Thus far only one person is known to have met death and only one to have met serious injury.

A squad of state police and volunteer rescuers who constituted searching parties among the camps along small streams east of McKeesport after an all-night hunt, this morning had found no bodies and no definite record of persons missing. The search continued owing to the presistent rumors that some campers had not been heard from since the storm.

Mrs. Emil Low, of 951 Beck's Run road, whose home was swept from its foundation, was rescued with little difficulty and was reunited with other members of her family.

N. Y. HAILS FLYING TRIO

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Miss Amelia Earhart, the tall, slim Boston settlement worker who was the first woman to fly across the Atlantic in an airplane, and her two companions on that dramatic adventure, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanician, returned today in triumph to their native country and were warmly welcomed by the City of New York.

"Welcome, Amelia," was the greeting shouted from the windows of skyscrapers as the fliers were escorted by blaring bands up Broadway after they had been taken off the liner President Roosevelt, which came in from Southampton, England, this morning. The blonde, brown-skinned Amelia, who bears a striking resemblance to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and who has been referred to as "The Girl Lindy," blushed profusely time and again as she acknowledged the tribute with a wave of her hand.

An escort of several thousand police met the fliers as they landed at the Battery at 10:30 a. m. and preceded them to the City Hall where they were officially welcomed by the city.

Miss Earhart seemed bewildered by the crowds that lined lower

MONTU MARMONT

She calls herself "Miss Nobody from Nowhere," but she is Miss Montu Marmont, also known as Babe Brown, and right now she is in the Oakland (Cal.) City jail, charged with putting a revolver to the ribs of W. E. Helm and driving off with his car with the remark that she needed it "in my business." The little lady weighs less than 100 pounds, speaks excellently and conducts herself as though convent-bred.

DENY BAIL IN CHURCH KILLING

Attorney Fayette J. Tyrrell must remain in the county jail pending his trial, the week of September 10.

Judge Elder W. Marshall so ruled in Criminal Court today in refusing to admit Tyrrell to bail.

"Testimony adduced before the coroner's inquest does not warrant admission to bail," the court held in a brief opinion. "The petition therefore is refused."

The move to free Tyrrell, charged with shooting to death Philip F. Clark, in the First Christian Church, Munhall, May 13, was made yesterday by Attorney J. T. Hoffman.

A petition presented by Hoffman set forth that the testimony at the coroner's inquest indicated no crime graver than that of manslaughter; that Tyrrell had lived in "mortal terror" of Clark; that the shooting was justifiable and that a jury undoubtedly would acquit the defendant. Tyrrell was counsel for Mrs. Clark in a divorce suit against her husband.

Smith 9-5 Favorite In Vote

Customarily Republican, Pittsburghers returned from an Independence Day celebration and yesterday voted nine-to-five for the Democratic presidential candidate over his Republican opponent in The Sun-Telegraph's straw ballot being taken on voting machines throughout the city.

Even in the City-County Building, among the officials, city and county, Smith was the favorite, with 301 voters and Hoover was favored by only 169. The heaviest odds in Smith's favor in a large vote was returned on the voting machine in the Fifth Avenue Arcade, where the totals stood, Smith 203, Hoover 83.

BOMB HILL HOUSE

For the second time within three months an attempt was made this morning to destroy the residence at 1208 Colwell street, Hill district. A bomb, placed in a side doorway, exploded with a detonation that rocked the neighborhood and sent scores rushing into the streets in terror. Police searched several hours before finding where the explosion had occurred.

The house has been vacant since being raided by Inspector John P. Clancy as a disorderly house. It had been raided many times previous, police say.

Jean Simon, of 5732 Baum boulevard, alleged owner of the property, was arrested by Capt. James Hoey, pending an investigation.

OCEAN FLIERS DOWNED, BLINDED BY FOG

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 6.—After being lost for hours in storm and fog over the Brazilian coast, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Maj. Carlo Del Prete, Italian aviators who made a record nonstop flight from Rome to Brazil, landed this morning at Touros, in the state of Rio Grande Del Norte, 50 miles north of Natal, said a dispatch from Natal.

The fliers arrived at Port Natal by automobile from Touros this morning.

Inability to get in wireless communication with the Italians led to fears they had made a forced landing in some isolated spot and an airplane had been sent out from Natal to search for them just before word was received from Touros that they had come down there.

Ferrarin and Del Prete had made their first landing on the beach 10 miles north of Natal at 7:50 last Gaining the rest benefits of an enforced off day, the Pirates today were in better shape to tangle with the Giants in the first game of a series that was down on the books to open yesterday.

Rain caused a postponement of the initial scrap, the upshot being the arrangement of a bargain attraction for tomorrow.

Fred Fussell has rested up well after blanking the Cardinals last Sunday. The new lefthander will twirl for the Oaklanders this afternoon. The Giants will counter with Joe Genewich or Fred Fitzsimmons.

Manager Bush's revised battlefront, with Sparky Adams leading off and Lloyd Waner batting second, will be effective this afternoon.

Coal Co. Houses Burn

Fire of baffling origin destroyed one house and damaged another in a row of vacant houses owned by Pittsburgh Coal Company in Lick Run, Broughton, early today.

Fire Chief J. J. Shevelan, of Broughton, said he believed the fire was of incendiary origin. The houses were on opposite ends of the row, both the blazes started from the back, and simultaneously. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, which operates the nearby Curry No. 6 mine, has been operating with nonunion miners.

FATHER FINDS SON CRUSHED UNDER AUTO

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., July 6.—Thomas Butler, 17, was found crushed to death under his automobile in a field off the Hookstown road yesterday by his father, Samuel Butler, of Backtown. The youth's car is believed to have swerved and overturned as he was returning from an Independence Day celebration.

Sweet Amelia -:- CALL HER 'MISS AIRHEART' -:- Not 'Lady Lindy'

THE LITTLE BOSTON SOCIAL-WORKER QUIETLY BUT WITH DETERMINATION MADE HER PLANS!
MISS "AIRHEART"
A MODERN AMELIA
ATLANTIC OCEAN
FAY KING

By FAY KING

TO AMELIA EARHART belongs the honor of being the first woman to fly the Atlantic!

They call her "Lady Lindy." But I think her own name, which is pronounced "Airheart," even more fitting!

Perhaps because Thackeray in his famous book, "Vanity Fair," made Amelia such a sweet, patient character, the name always suggests gentleness!

From what we hear, Amelia suits Miss Earhart perfectly!

But she is an ultra-modern Amelia!

What would the gentle Amelias of Thackeray's day say to see their namesake shaking her yellow wind-blown curls at danger and leaving the quiet paths of social work to hit the broad blue "high"-way across to Europe!

Such are the changes progress brings, though Amelias may remain just as gentle!

Broadway and the interest that her arrival had created. It was, however, a rather quiet reception, as such receptions go, lacking the uproar and excitement of greetings accorded other famous fliers in the past, but it was sincere enough. For one thing the weather was damp and drizzly. Then, too, the public had become accustomed to welcoming heroes and heroines of the air.

Newspapermen bombarded Miss Earhart with questions as she came up the bay in the city's official welcome boat, the Macom. She replied freely and graciously to the questions, but none of the reporters was able to obtain from her confirmation or denial of the report that she is engaged to Samuel Chapman, an electrical engineer of Boston.

"That's my private life," she remarked.

TO CONTINUE FLYING

Asked if she would continue to fly, she replied:

"I most certainly will. I'm too deeply entangled in aviation to leave it now."

With bands playing, Grover Whalen, silk hat and all, officially welcomed Miss Earhart and her companions as the Macom nosed against the liner President Roosevelt at Quarantine. Whalen was accompanied by other city dignitaries, and there were present, too, a group of friends from Boston, a reception committee from Chicago (she is a graduate of the Hyde Park High School of Chicago) and a committee of citizens from Williamsburg, Pa., the home of Stultz.

Pilot Stultz's wife and his mother, Mrs. Clara Stultz, of Williamsburg, were present, as was Miss Anne Bruce, the blue-eyed, brown-haired fiancee of Gordon. The two men fliers were greeted with hugs and kisses.

Arriving at the battery, Miss Earhart and her companions were escorted up Broadway to City Hall, where they were introduced to the radio audience by Whalen. Miss Earhart said:

"This is the most glorious reception I have ever had. There were many receptions for us in Europe, but I appreciate this even more, I think. Those hours we spent above the Atlantic were quite worth while. I am glad to be here. Thank you."

Medals were then presented to all three fliers by Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee. Among those on the platform was Clarence Chamberlain, noted trans-Atlantic flier.

After the reception at City Hall, the fliers went to the Biltmore Hotel, where they attended a luncheon given in their honor by Commander Richard Byrd.

"FOX" MUST HANG; HE TAKES FATE CALMLY

International News Service.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., July 6.—Sunk in the placid lethargy that has enveloped him since his arrival here, William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," received word that his sentence of death had been upheld today without comment.

He was informed by a guard, when newspapermen brought word that the State Supreme Court had ruled he must be hanged.

Hickman nodded slowly at the news, but said nothing. He is in solitary confinement in the condemned row here as a result of a battle with Joseph Troche, a cellmate.

In his last interview with Jerome Walsh, leader of his defense counsel, Hickman expressed the wish to live "here," waving his hand toward the flower gardens of the inner courtyard on which his cell fronts.

At that time, Walsh said: "Understand, Eddie, we're not trying to get you out, but we're just trying to save your neck on a law that we believe is wrong."

Hickman nodded that he understood and said: "That's right. I like it here."

THREE MONTHS TO LIVE

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 6.—William Edward Hickman is assured a three-months lease on life.

Superior Judge Douglas Edmonds, whose duty it probably will be to re-sentence Hickman, today explained that at least ninety days must elapse before Hickman can be hanged for the kidnaping and murder of Marion Parker.

The earliestt date upon which the death sentence may be again pronounced is August 12. At least two months must elapse then before Hickman ma be hanged.

This would bring about his execution in the middle of October, provided the law moved at top speed and Hickman is denied a rehearing by the State Supreme Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court yesterday upheld the conviction of William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," who kidnaped and murdered 12-year-old Marian Parker in Los Angeles.

E. H. McGory with his wife and five children, who were rescued at Rainbow Gardens.

Mrs. McGory is a daughter of Mrs. Low. They were brought together last night when their friends read of their rescue in The Sun-Telegraph.

Mrs. Frank Brinkman, of 816 Beck's Run road, whose home was badly damaged, in describing her experience today, declared that there seemed no reason to believe that any lives had been lost in Beck's Run.

"The water rose suddenly and Mrs. Low's house was surrounded by swift currents, but she was not swept from the building as had been reported," said Mrs. Brinkman. "After the flood subsided somewhat, she made her way from the house. I was watching the waters rise, fearing that my house would be swept away, and if any bodies had been carried past I think I should have seen them or would have heard the cries of persons in peril.

"The roar of the flood was terrible and it is not surprising that rumors of disaster and loss of life were reported. People fled to the hill and motorists who succeeded in escaping from the high water probably told of the danger in this community. The damage to my property will be more than $2,000, and I am one of the heaviest losers."

It is estimated that 400 automobiles were destroyed or damaged seriously within a 20-mile radius of McKeesport, and that scores of houses and garages were damaged or swept away. Roads were blocked by landslides and railroads and street car lines damaged by washouts. Several hundred persons were marooned for hours at two resorts near McKeesport. Scores of famili were forced from their homes.

The first drowning reported as a result of the flood was made by searchers who found the body of Peter Petrocsko, 38, of 222 Raspberry way, Duquesne. His body was found in Nick Lee Hollow, Duquesne, early yesterday.

The only serious injury reported so far is that of Ray Bigler, 45, Irwin avenue, Hays, who suffered a fractured skull yesterday. He is in the Mercy Hospital. He fell into a ditch while removing debris near his home.

SMITH LEADS IN STRAW VOTE

On only one machine, that in the Fulton Building, did Hoover pull heavier than Smith, winning 40 to 33.

The Mt. Pleasant fair, in Westmoreland county, is running a close competition between the two candidates, voters on The Sun-Telegraph straw ballot machine registering 93 for Hoover and 97 for Smith during Wednesday and Thursday.

The remarkable feature of the straw vote being taken by this newspaper is the "drift" of normal Republican voters to the Democratic banner. Of those who have voted in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote, 1,752 said they voted for the Democratic candidate, John W. Davis, four years ago and 7,625 voted for Coolidge, the Republican candidate. In other words, there were 1,752 Democratic votes in 1924 to 11,462 Democratic votes in 1928 in the present straw balloting.

Results recorded by the machines Thursday follow:

	Hoover.	Smith.
Sun-Telegraph Want Ad Office	60	122
Jenkins Arcade	141	200
City-County Building	169	301
Fifth Avenue Arcade	83	203
Fulton Building	40	33
East End Savings and Trust Building	63	83
Mt. Pleasant Fair Grounds	93	97
Thursday's totals	649	1,039
Previous machine totals	5,131	6,646
Mail vote	435	2,049
Personally canvassed vote	1,922	1,728
Totals	8,137	11,462

IN OTHER STATES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—After three days of straw balloting in Northern California, the total vote cast stood at 3,374. The count showed that Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was 862 votes ahead of Herbert C. Hoover.

The totals for Northern California for the three days when the count was taken were:

Smith	2,118
Hoover	1,256

Four years ago at the presidential election the same voters expressed their preferences as follows:

Coolidge	1,077
Davis	257

BOSTON, Mass., July 6.—(INS.)—The total vote of the Boston Evening American's straw vote on the presidential election shows the following figures:

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Two eastern trunk lines, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Nickel Plate Railroads, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to reopen for further argument permission granted the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway to construct a 38-mile extension between Cochrane's Mills and Connellsville, Pa.

The extension is a "link" in a proposed fifth system opening a through route from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard. The Connellsville extension would connect the Western Maryland Railroad with the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railway via the P. and W. Va's lines.

The commission's approval of the construction was by a five to four vote. The trunk lines maintained that the extension would not create any new business, but would divert traffic from existing railroads.

My personal contacts with Pittsburgh have always been extremely pleasant to me, and every time I visit it I marvel at its wonderful growth and the certainty of its further progress.

The busier a community, the harder the people work, the more self-centered and energetic their lives, the greater the boon to that community is fine, clean motion picture entertainment, and I feel certain that it has played a part in the upbuilding of the fine Americanism of Pittsburgh.

May I wish for Pittsburgh the kind of growth which makes not only for more progressiveness and more extensive success, but for all those qualities which will make it known throughout our broad land as a really and truly Greater Pittsburgh.

Electric Shock Kills Wire Worker

FIRST-AID FIGHT FOR LIFE IS FUTILE

After working for several hours, a crew of life-saving experts gave up their efforts to restore life to the body of Elgin Howard, 35, of Wildwood, a Duquesne Light Company trouble shooter, shocked to death last midnight in Gold way, near Baum boulevard and Craig street.

At 6 o'clock this morning the rescue squad gave up their work, and Howard's body was removed to an undertaking establishment.

Howard climbed a pole in the alley shortly before midnight to place a new light bulb. Two boys noticed him hanging there almost 15 minutes later and they sounded an alarm of fire. Neighbors also called the Duquesne Light Company. Firemen removed the body and then company employes began their work to restore respiration. A score of persons watched the work through the early morning hours.

Mrs. C. Kane, of 203 Melwood street, who ran to the street when the firemen arrived, surprised a man in her home when she returned a short time later. The man fled. Nothing was stolen.

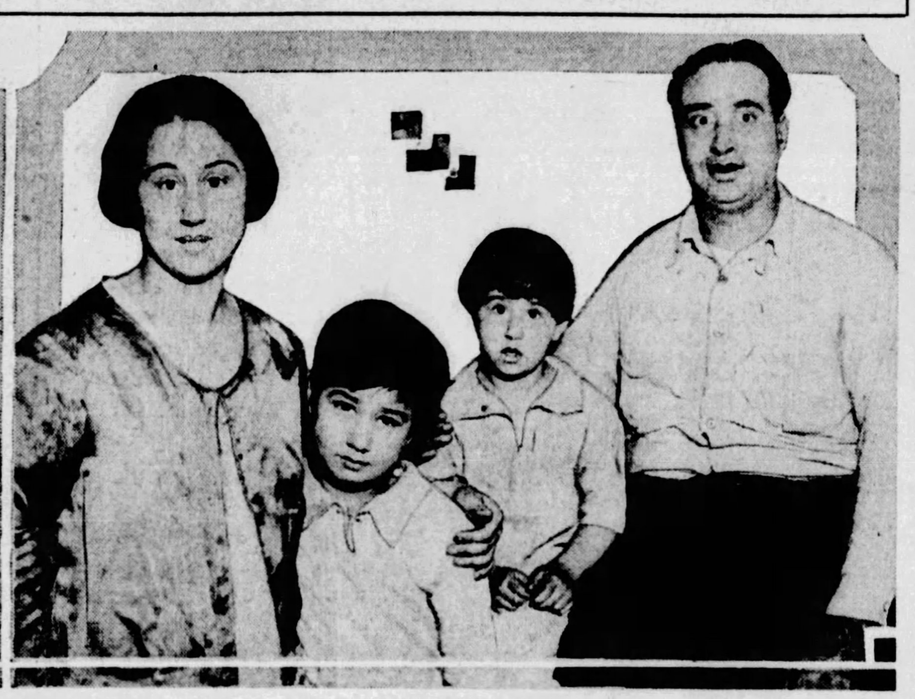
The child was in hospital five days and incurred bills of $43, which Daniels was asked to pay. He said he was in the car, which he bought for $25, but was not driving it. He was sentenced for 15 days in addition to the 30 days he has been imprisoned.

AUTOS ENGULFED -:- Two Families Rescued in Storm -:- FATHER HERO



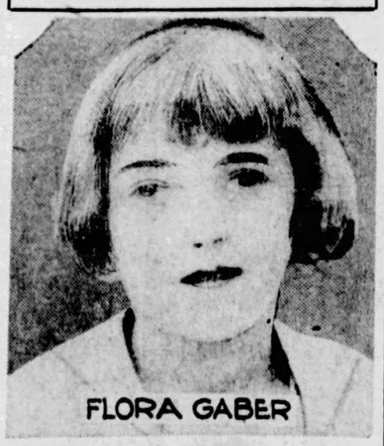
CAR ENGULFED

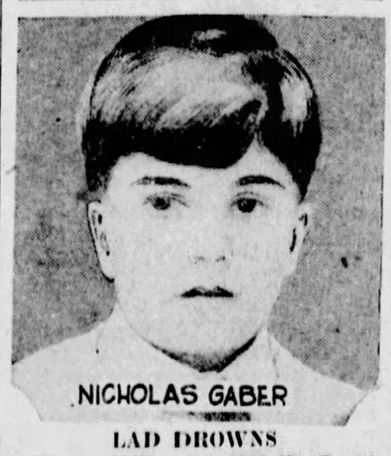
At the height of the serious McKeesport area storm, the automobile of Thomas H. McGory, 11 Marshall street, Becks Run, was washed away and he and his family stranded. They were picked up and taken to the home of C. J. Relling, 6804 McPherson boulevard. They are Stella Low, sister-in-law; Thomas; the father; Iris (on his lap); Mrs. Mary, holding George; Sherwood; and Naomi Jennie McGory.

FATHER HERO

Thomas Picora, 33 Mt. Oliver street, was caught with his little family in his automobile when the storm reached its height and the waters hit their highest level. He swam to safety with his two children and then returned for his wife, saving her just as the water covered the automobile. Other heroic deeds during and shortly after the storm are just coming to light in the damaged area.

SISTER HEROIC





LAD DROWNS

Nicholas Gaber, 10, 1832 Mt. Joseph street, was drowned at Holabar's Beach, French Creek, near Meadville, after his sister, Flora, 13, had seized him after he sank once. The child lost her grip.

FOG BLINDS FLIERS

night, completing their 4,600-mile flight from Rome and setting an aviation distance record. After a rest of an hour and 20 minutes they hopped off again for Rio De Janeiro, about 1,200 miles distant, allowing for coast-line detours.

The weather was bad off the coast with storms sweeping some sections of it, but the fliers said they would risk it.

Radio stations on the northeastern coast tried to get into wireless communication with the airmen, but failed.

Finally word came through from Touros that the Italian plane "had been picked up." This left it in doubt as to whether radio communication with the fliers had been re-established or whether the plane had come down.

Immediately afterward another telegram referred to the "reception to the fliers," indicating they had made a forced landing. As Touros is 50 miles north of Natal and Rio de Janeiro is south of Natal, the indications were that the fliers got lost in the thick weather and had circled through the clouds after losing their way.

This city is approximately 1,500 miles south of Touros.

Gov. Lamartine, of the state of Rio Grande del Norte left immediately for Touros to give what assistance he could to the airmen and help them on their way. Immediately after word was flashed from Touros that the Italian seaplane was down there a caravan of motor cars set out for that place from Natal.

Women jurors paid no attention to testimony and all attention to the dress of Lila McComas, film actress, in her suit against Al G. Barnes' circus for injuries received when she fell from an elephant. A new trial has been granted in Los Angeles.

Her Finger Injured On Icebox, Sues Landlord

A splinter in her finger was made the basis of a $50,000 suit against the Schenley Apartments Company by Mrs. Eugene Pearson in Common Pleas Court today. The top of the electric refrigerator in the Schenley apartment she had leased had been split, and the lessor had promised to have it repaired, Mrs. Pearson maintained. She complained the splinter ran in her finger the first day she moved in, and that the infection that followed caused her to spend weeks in the hospital.

1 KILLED, ONE HURT IN E. E. FIGHT

Shot in the abdomen early today during a fight with Joe Lucciano, 35, of 622 Whittier street, Nick Perrucci, 35, of 664 Lenora street, died a short time later in the Pittsburgh Hospital. Lucciano is reported to be in a critical condition in the Belvedere Hospital suffering from stab wounds in the fight.

Three small children of the Perruccis are being cared for by relatives.

According to police, Lucciano is a cousin of Perrucci's wife, Louise, 24, and the two men quarreled in Perrucci's home. When Mrs. Perrucci ordered them out of the house because of the heated words, they renewed their fight in front of Lucciano's home. Police are guarding Lucciano, and Mrs. Perrucci was taken to detective headquarters for questioning.

Three hundred representatives of the company, and their families, left yesterday to attend the conference, which will be held there over a seven-day period.

William W. Duff, president, will give the opening address and Leon O. Fisher, vice president of the Equitable Society, New York, and Albert G. Borden, agency instructor, will also speak. Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life, is to speak Saturday.

'BORROWS' CAR, IS PAROLED

John Armsey, 27, a painter of Montour street, Coraopolis, was anxious to see his little daughter and "borrowed" the automobile of Peter Pompei, parked in front of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Coraopolis, May 27, while the owner was in church. Armsey motored to Woodlawn, where his estranged wife had possession of the daughter, and brought the child to Coraopolis despite the refusal of the mother to allow him to see his daughter. The car was returned undamaged to the owner next day. Armsey told this to Judge Elder W. Marshall in Criminal Court and was paroled for one year, having been in jail 29 days.

DANCERS STOPPED BY POLICE AFTER 533 HOURS

7 COUPLES STAY TO FINISH

The demise of the dance marathon vogue in Pittsburgh probably was sounded at 2 a. m. today, when the shuffle contest in Duquesne Garden was stopped by police. The seven remaining couples, after moving 533 hours to a new record, were escorted to the arms of Morpheus, while the band, for some reason or other, played the national anthem!

Inspector Albert Beebe and Police Surgeon D. E. Sable stopped the derby on orders of Public Safety Director Clark. The dance was in its twenty-third day.

The couples in at the finish were Mrs. Pascale, and her son, Arthur Serraro; No. 8, Tony Phillips and Tiny Neiman; No. 42, Billy Anthony and Mary Skillen; No. 57, Robert Zielinski and Mary Olsen; No. 82, John Roche and Marie Martin; No. 83, Joseph Fisher and Helen Harzubay; No. 103, Joseph Sayles and Helen Flood.

The $3,500 in prizes was divided among the 14 shufflers, each receiving $325—a fraction less than 61 cents an hour! They were to receive a portion of the gate receipts, a contract the management said would be fulfilled later.

The closing of the Duquesne Garden dance apparently failed to influence the competitors in the contest at Stahl Gardens, Homestead. One couple—Harold Evans and Anna Lucas, of Homestead—departed early today, but 13 couples remained, and at noon had completed 232 hours of mild dancing.

Solo dancing provided an interesting, but hardly strange interlude, during the night at Olympia Park, McKeesport. Charles Robertson, who is carrying on alone, relapsed into a semi-conscious state and for several hours his face was drenched with cold water to keep him awake. The other 10 couples, who had shuffled 108 hours at noon, appeared to enjoy all this.

ARTILLERYMEN LEAVING FOR TOBYHANNA TONIGHT

Members of the One-Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery of the Pennsylvania National Guard leave for two weeks' field duty at Tobyhanna tonight, departing from the East Liberty station at 8:50 o'clock. Col. William R. Dunlap will be in charge of the 700 men and officers.

MALONE FLAYS BOND WORK DELAY

Street improvements provided for in the recent municipal bond issue may be held over until next year because of the delay of the Department of Public Works, President of Council James F. Malone declared today, after sending a letter to Director Edward G. Lang demanding an explanation.

Malone explained that bond issue ordinances providing for street work totaling $3,338,000 are being held by Council until the Department advertises for bids on $1,000,000 already authorized.

"There must have been some slipup," he wrote to Land today. "You definitely told Council about the tenth of June you expected to be ready to advertise for bids for new work on June 20. That time has come and gone and bids have not been asked for as yet."

Lang said today that he expected to advertise for bids on the first set of street improvements on July 19 and for the others within two weeks of that date. He said that the department would have half of August, September, October and November in which to do the work. The Malone letter was inspired by complaints of residents of Traymore street concerning the delay in improving that thoroughfare.

VOTERS IN CITY SHOWN 3 TO 1 FOR BONDS

The voters of Pittsburgh gave overwhelming approval to the $43,680,000 county improvement bond issue, according to official figures tabulated yesterday by the special returning board under the supervision of Judges Frank P. Patterson and George V. Moore.

Complete count of the wards of Pittsburgh, with more than 57,000 voting, showed an average majority of about three to one on the seven questions. The Pittsburgh count was as follows:

	Yes.	No.
No. 1—Roads	43,666	13,454
No. 2—Boulevards	42,896	13,759

No. 6—Town Hall	41,722	14,765
No. 7—Airport	43,703	13,041

Figures are being assembled on the third class cities, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, the count in which has been completed. The board is now engaged in tabulating returns from the boroughs.

Collyer and Mears decided they would attempt to reach Moscow today if passport and other formalities would be arranged quickly. They then left the field for the Russian embassy.

SUE CORAL GABLES

CREDITORS ASK RECEIVERSHIP; HEARING SET

MIAMI, Fla., July 6.—(AP.)—Listing claims aggregating $4,050, three creditor companies yesterday asked a receivership for the Coral Gables Corporation, developers of the largest subdivision project in Florida.

Hearing on the involuntary bankruptcy petition, which was filed in Federal District Court here, was set for next Tuesday in Jacksonville.

The petitioners were Walton & Spencer Company, Chicago, claiming $3,600 on three promissory notes; Annin & Co., New York, listing $200 as balance on a promissory note for $350, and the Four Seas Company, Boston, $250 on three promissory notes.

Officials of the corporation and the larger creditors have waged a long fight to refinance the organization and continue without liquidation.

Financial interests headed by Seneca D. Eldredge, of the New York banking firm of Eldredge & Company, and Maj. Lynn H. Dinkins, of New Orleans, recently took over the development and announced plans for refinancing and completion of the project.

Should the receivership be granted, attorneys said, it would force the suspension of the refinancing efforts.

An estimate of $29,000,000 outstanding indebtedness and no available assets for immediate liquidation was made by the Eldredge-Dinkins interests.

The Coral Gables Corporation, headed by George Merrick, whose old home property was the nucleus of the development, in less than eight years constructed a city from grove lands and wilderness. At one time, Coral Gables had a population of 12,000. It is on the outskirts of Miami.

SEE NEW BAN ON STREET SALES

Fruit and vegetable merchants in crowded downtown Pittsburgh must do business inside their stores. Judge James R. Macfarlane so intimated from the bench in Common Pleas court yesterday, and when his final order is handed down, it is expected to have far reaching influence on the manner in which business generally is conducted.

This was indicated following a hearing in which Frank Ripetty and James Spagnola, doing business as the Spagnolo Fruit Company in Diamond street and other thoroughfares, were made defendants in contempt of court proceeding for blocking the sidewalk with customers by doing business through windows.

Judge Macfarlane said it was too bad the streets weren't wide enough to permit such practices but that city ordinances prohibiting them must be enforced. City Attorney Charles W. Waldschmidt said he awaited only the court's formal ruling to order enforcement, even involving arrests.

For several years downtown merchants have been complaining of the fruit vendors' street sales. Finally the city asked for an injunction to restrain them from blocking sidewalks. Judge Macfarlane granted the injunction and only recently reminded city officials that his order was being violated. Thereupon the law department started the contempt proceedings.

Hollywood Heralds Interesting Tales of What Occupies Time and Labors of Popular Photoplay Stars

NO DANGER HERE -:- NOR HERE -:- BUT POSSIBLY HERE

Dorothy Sebastian isn't trying to shoot herself. That "gun" is a hair dryer, run on the battery of the car, for use after a lass has taken a dip in the surf.

Buster Keaton wants to use this peccary in a movie scene. This one is tame, but in his wild state this little pig is savage.

Miss Sebastian has the smallest foot in moviedom. Just think of that and remember what happened to Cinderella, who lost her freedom because of a little slipper.

Director F. W. Murnau Hurries Company to Wheat Belt for Scenes in "Our Daily Bread"

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 6.

TIME won't wait even for movie magnates. Thus it happens that Director F. W. Murnau will hurry to some spot in the Middle West with his entire company to film sequences for "Our Daily Bread," while the wheat fields are in all their glory. The story, which might be termed "The Epic of Wheat," centers about a city-bred waitress who has dealt wheat cakes all her life, but who has never seen a field abloom.

Mary Duncan is the girl. Charlie Farrell has been selected to play the leading male role. Mary is at present working in "The River," which Frank Borsage is directing. But he will lend her to Murnau and proceed to complete his picture with the exception of those shots requiring Miss Duncan's presence. Then, when she returns from the wheat belt, Borsage will shoot these sequences and fit them into his film.

The story has both ancient and modern sequences, and the important cast is headed by George O'Brien and Dolores Costello.

A couple of weeks ago, I told you that everyone on the Metro lot was being considered for the leading role opposite Jack Gilbert. That is, everyone except little Anita Page. And I ventured the guess that Anita would probably get the part in the end. Now, it seems that the powers aren't so crazy about Eva Von Berne, and Anita has been busy for two days taking tests with Gilbert for the big role. Here's hoping she gets it.

Marceline Day has finally started in the ingenue role of "A Single Man," which was supposed to be played by either Sue Carol or Anita Page. Eddie Nugent is the juvenile. Eddie used to be a property boy on the Metro lot. Then someone "discovered" him. As yet Eddie hasn't much of a public. Although he has been prominently cast in three big photoplays, none of them has as yet been released. So, like Fay Wray, he will remain an unknown star until folks see him do his stuff. Eddie, like Anita Page, is a New Yorker.

Way back in 1913 Jack McDonald quit the "legit" for movies. Now he has been cast as "Windy," the pilot who guides "Show Boat" up and down the Mississippi. He may be remembered by the folks in Seattle as a member of Laurette Taylor's stock company. He also played in New York with Majorie Rambeau.

Harry Cohn, of Columbia Pictures, spent most of yesterday in silent prayer. Some one phoned the producer that his star, Lya De Putti, was having a thoroughly good time in an airplane several thousand feet in the air. Lya has still a week's work in the Columbia special, "The Scarlet Virgin," and with a big investment in the picture the producers day was completely spoiled until Lya was reported safe back on earth.

The Ark and the Tower of Babel have been reproduced on the Warner Brothers lot for sequences in "Noah's Ark," the spectacle of Biblical days which promises to be one of the most lavish productions emanating from Hollywood this year.

POPULAR PLAYS SCHEDULED

Comedy is a predominating element in "East is West," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week. It is a story about a little girl found in China, who is brought to the United States, and has numerous adventures in Chinatown, San Francisco and on Nob Hill, the society residential district of that city.

The Pitt is reproducing the original settings and stage effects used in David Belasco's presentation of "The Music Master," which will be offered by the Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

Max Teuber, who is presenting his Pallette Dancers in the Keith-Albee vaudeville portion of the program in the Davis, specializes on gorgeous colored light effects.

"The Captive," opening in the Gayety next Monday evening, is to be acted by a company headed by Marcia Byron and Vernon Steel. Matinees are announced for Wednesday and Saturday. The play is an adaptation from the French original.

HE FEELS BETTER IN EVERY WAY!

Local Man Claims Ten Herbs Benefited Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels.

"Ten Herbs has given me new strength and ambition and made me feel better in every way," was the statement of Mr. Nicholas Walsh, 1128 Greenfield Avenue, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at

MR. NICHOLAS WALSH

May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine.

"I had indigestion very badly for about 9 years," continued Mr. Walsh, who is 67 years old, and was employed by the United States Steel Co. for 20 years, but was put on the pension list about 9 years ago. "Food would ferment and fill me with gas, which troubled my heart. I became constipated and got so bad that I had to keep taking physics. I would become so dizzy that I would have to hold to something to keep from falling. My nerves became affected, and if I got two hours' sleep at night I was fortunate. My kidneys caused pains in my back and compelled me to arise often at night. I thought my age was telling on me and I tried different medicines, but never obtained satisfactory results.

"Now, after taking Ten Herbs, I can honestly say that I feel more like myself than I have in the last 9 years. My bowels are regular—no need for physics. My appetite is normal. Food does not ferment and form gas, and my heart never bothers me any more. My liver and kidneys are working fine. Dizzy spells and pains in my back are gone. I do not arise so often at night. My nerves are more quiet, and my sleep is sound. Your medicine seems to have given my whole system a thorough cleansing and improved my blood circulation. Ten Herbs has made such a great change in me that I do not hesitate to recommend your medicine to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Appeal to Travel in Europe Answered by Ever Increasing Number of Pittsburghers

THERE is no doubt about it, Europe has an irresistible appeal for most of us, and it seems to me that a few more local folks are answering the call this summer than in other years. Every day we hear of at least one or two Pittsburghers having sailed to spend the summer abroad, or planning to leave within a short time.

Among the most distinguished of the travelers will be Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. I understand that Secretary Mellon is planning to sail next Thursday for Europe. There he will join his son, Paul, who has been abroad for a few weeks with a party of fellow students from Yale.

Quite a few Pittsburgh people have already sailed. For instance, Mrs. W. Edgar Reed and her son, McCook Reed, of Amberson avenue, sailed for Paris last Saturday on the Columbus. And another family group abroad consists of the Henry Clay McEldowneys, of Northumberland street, and their son and daughter-in-law, the Robert McEldowneys, of Johnstown. They took the Leviathan, I believe, sailing about 10 days ago and landing at Southampton.

Mr. Wilson's best man will be Charles L. Galanot, of Hartford, Conn., and the ushers will include Daniel J. Brady, of Fort Dodge, Ia.; Clifford V. Brown, of Tiffin, O.; Les M. Depp and Joseph P. West, both of Pittsburgh.

The ceremony is set for 6:30 o'clock in the home of Pauline's father, Frederick Lingenfelser, in South Negley avenue. The Rev. Charles E. Dover will be the officiating clergyman.

Kittens' Dream of Wealth Flies When She Learns Ted Is a Chauffeur

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and Kitten are daugters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Kitten, Emily's sister, is going with a wild crowd and is running close to danger. Emily goes into partnership with Mrs. Haiden, Stella tells her that Skeets has deserted her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"NOTHING'S the matter and I wish you wouldn't call me names."

"But you used to like driving. Have I done anything?"

"It's what you don't do gives me a pain. You're too poky, Ted Lanier."

A silence on the wire; then, "All right. I'll do whatever you say. If it's excitement you're looking for, where shall I meet you?"

He was eager to please when they did meet, but Kitten seemed determined not to be pleased. The ride developed into bids for frindliness on Ted's part and silences on hers. In desperation he drove into Deep Valley Inn and she brightened at once.

He spoiled this, however, by refusing her a second cocktail and they set out to drive again.

They barely had turned into the country road and parked a moment when he brought the situation to a head.

"Why not cut out all the wild stuff, honey? Don't get you anywhere. Ain't so good for me, remembering I bought you your first drink."

"Is that so? You're too dam' righteous for any use."

"Please don't swear, Kitten. Such a pretty little thing as you."

"That's about all you ever say to me. Don't do this, don't do that. Who gave you the right to boss me?"

"I'm not bossing you. Only a fellow knows things a nice girl doesn't. I thought—you see I thought maybe we might get married some day, Kitten. If you like me enough."

She glanced at him and looked down quickly, thinking fast. Wealth, position—get away from The Hill—one of the Norrises asking her to marry him. After all, she'd like Ted if he weren't so poky. His wife could change that.

But the Norrises—how would they feel about it? Cut him off, maybe? Look on her as designing.

"How about your family, Ted?" She asked this almost timidly. "How would they feel about me?"

"Family? I haven't any. Nobody but me to be suited and believe me I'd be that all right. We'd get a little house somewhere; one of those cute bungalows and live like a king and queen. I make good money and I've been saving my bankroll, honeygirl."

He was so exuberant that he didn't see the pinched look go over her face, nor the sudden green of her eyes.

She said, in a tight voice, "You—you work, then?"

"Certainly. How'd you suppose I'd drive a car like this? Got the best shuffering job in the county. Practically my own boss—hey, what's the matter? Where you going?"

She was getting out of the car. "Chauffeur!" she spat at him. "You! And you ask me to marry you!"

It was then she tilted her chin and gave him the side-wise glance and went tapping away down the road.

A long time before she saw him again. And when that time came she saw him through tears.

Marilee Grainger was visiting her aunt in the East Eighties and now Kent was driving into town to see her.

He had come back from his wandering to and fro; he was ready to settle down. A piece of luck he considered the offer of the district attorney post; not a great thing, of course, in a county where major crimes happened only once every three or four years. But a good start.

It would help put him on the map; besides he had definite ideas about what the county needed in the way of a political cleanup. It was for chaps like himself, fortunately in a position where money wasn't the thing of great importance, to put that over.

Not that he had any idea of getting by on his father's wealth. His every instinct pointed to individuality; life was a gift held in trust and the one who wouldn't make the most of it didn't amount to much. Help along the other fellow since he needn't grub for himself; give the folks clean government if that task fell to his lot.

In the meantime his marriage was still unsettled. He was not even engaged; on the few occasions he had seen Marilee after that night in the garden he felt no impulse to speak of an engagement.

But now he thought it was up to him. Since this was the thing to do, might as well get through with it. He didn't know, really, why he hadn't done it before.

Settle it tonight and let them make the wedding preparations. Right after election would be a good time. They'd think that too soon, though; have to wait till the first of the year, very likely.

He crossed the ferry at Forty-second street and began to drive uptown. But he made little headway for this was the hour of the theater rush; when finally he did turn from the avenue into the side street it was 9 o'clock.

At the apartment he was told that Marilee and her aunt were dining out. He didn't care especially; the library looked inviting and he sauntered in there to wait.

The hour stretched into two as he ran through the newspapers, thinking of his plans. When at last he grew restless he sat down before the radio and turned the dials.

Stations shifted under his fingers; finally he caught the last notes of a song and came to keen attention. Only one in the world could sing like that, he mused; only John McCormack.

The voice came again, goldenly, throbbing with passion:

"Oh moon of my delight that knows no wane,
The moon of heaven is rising once again—"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Do Not Let the Baby Go Thirsty!

DR. COPELAND

BABIES need more thoughtful care in summer than in winter. They are human, and, like ourselves, suffer seasonal inconveniences just as we do. Indeed, they suffer more than grownups because they are more sensitive.

Above all things, don't forget that babies get thirsty. Many an infant wails because he thirsts.

You know how you suffer if you are at a lecture or somewhere you can't get a drink of water. Really, you can get into a perfect fever of desire. Don't you suppose babies suffer from the same cause? Of course they do.

Next time your baby cries without apparent reason give him a teaspoonful or two of water. You may be surprised at the look of beatific content which will spread over the little face.

The digestion of babies is a delicate thing, and in this respect they are more easily upset than adults are. The water you and I drink is quite good enough and safe enough for us, but it might not do at all for a tiny baby.

Almost all drinking water is more or less contaminated. The colon bacillus—the germ which is capable of producing diarrhea—is very apt to be found in drinking water. We do not need just now to inquire why, but it is just so and we must take no chances in giving such water to a baby.

Boiling will kill germs. Bear this in mind always about foods and beverages. If they have been cooked or boiled the dangerous ingredients are destroyed. Whenever you are in doubt about a food or drink, boil it.

Water which a baby is to have should be boiled for several minutes and then cooled and kept in a bottle which has been boiled or scalded thoroughly. If the bottle is stoppered with sterile cotton the water will be good for a day, especially if kept in a cool place.

Several times every day give the baby a little of this carefully prepared water. It will help him to thrive. It will keep him sweet and happy.

The waste of the body cannot be carried away until it is placed in solution. Of course, practically all of a baby's food is liquid and this helps to carry away waste, as well as to supply nourishment. But the addition to the diet of a reasonable amount of pure water will promote the disposal of the waste materials. It will aid the kidneys and the skin, as well as the intestinal tract.

I was reminded to write this advice because there is a wise little mother on the same railway car in which I am riding. She has a beautiful baby and all this afternoon that infant has been as good as gold. Several times it has had a sip of water and has been kept happy and content.

Answers to Health Queries

A. E. Q.—What can be done for an oily skin, enlarged pores and scars left by pimples?

A.—Proper diet and elimination will help the condition of the skin. Hot and cold compresses applied alternately for five or ten minutes daily should be helpful for the enlarged pores. In some instances the X-ray treatment is helpful for scars, if they are not too deep. This, of course, must be done by an expert, skilled in this kind of work.

A. D. H. Q.—What are adhesions.

A.—Adhesions are bands of tissue, the result of inflammation or operation. When two inflamed or raw surfaces come in contact there is likely to be union and the formation of adhesions.

L. H. A. Q.—The pupils of my eyes are conspicuously small. Is there anything I can put in the eyes that will enlarge the pupil?

A.—Drugs to dilate the pupil are harmful. Do not use them.

T. Y. Q.—I am a boy of 14 and bite my nails. How may the habit of biting the nails be stopped?

A.—Painting them with tincture of asafetida should be successful in breaking this habit.

DAY DREAMS -:- -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell

© 1928 by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

LAZY, lovely days, when one dreams and wonders what the Summer is going to bring forth. When one plans and dreams of the wonderful days to come and in a hazy, happy sort of way sees the realization of a life dream coming true.

It's wonderful to visualize oneself as the heroine of a wonderful love story and follow the intricate mazes of the plot through to the happy ending. For every girl in the world dreams ever in the same way.

Dreams of the wonderful lover of her dreams; of the home which they will share; of the happiness which will be theirs. Oh yes, day dreams—the sweetest dreams of all! May each and every one of you find the fulfilment of these dreams and—live happily ever after!

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE MODERN LOVERS

MOST of these brilliant new theories about free love and early marriages, which the younger generation have "discovered," were in vogue among the savages long before the days of "self-expression."

HELEN ROWLAND

A financial genius is usually a man who spends three-quarters of his life doing things that he doesn't want to do, in order that he may some day have the money to do the things he will be too tired to do.

A long engagement is an awful strain on the affections. Many a girl has spent years waiting for a man to "get his start," only to find that when he got it, it started him in another woman's direction.

It isn't the initial lie he tells a woman that costs a man so much effort—it's the upkeep.

SONG OF A HOUSE OWNER.

There never was a tyrant
Like that little house of mine!
It's always WANTING something;
Now a crimson rambler vine—

Now a load of loam or top-soil,
Now a matting for the floor—
And now another coat of paint
And now a new front door.

No mistress ever drove a man
So hard—yet, I opine,
No man e'er loved a woman
As I love that house of mine!

For when I'm city-weary
And my thoughts begin to rust,
And all the little corners
Of my soul seem filled with dust.

My house throws open wide its arms,
And takes me to its breast:
And there, amid the roses,
I find solitude—and REST!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, July 7

THE trine of Moon to Mercury, according to the rule of astrology, marks this as a day of great liveliness and of diverse accomplishments. Business, employment and the professions, especially in all that pertains to writings, letters and publishing, will react to this high planetary stimulus and may be given an unusual or ingenious angle by the aspect of Mars and Uranus. There may be unlooked-for change or travel, and the finances are under favorable sway, but personal relations may disconcert, though not seriously.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and prosperous year in which there may be unexpected developments and opportunities. These may involve change, but may have an unsatisfactory personal angle, though not serious. It is a time for pushing forward with aggressiveness and assurance.

A child born on this day may be versatile, enterprising and should make a success in many directions.

All is in Mercury that the wise seek.—ANCIENT PROVERB.

Repairing Furs

If you are looking over your furs, and discover a tear in the skin, it should be mended immediately, or the hard wear of Winter will make it beyond repair. If the skin is thin and deteriorated, mending with a needle and silk is practically useless, for it pulls away as fast as it is sewn.

Violet Turban

Returning each spring, the flower turban is again made welcome. One of the most novel expressions of this tye of hat was seen in a violet model—one-half being developed of white and the other of black violets. Earlap effects of foliage to match each side accentuated the striking contrast.

How Famous Model Bleaches Her Skin

Miss Betty Thatcher, well-known artist's model and noted particularly for the pure beauty of her skin, has her own idea of a skin bleach. She buys no ready-made preparation, but "mixes her own." Her recipe, in her own words, is very simple.

"I get three ounces of Orchard White from the druggist and to this I add the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkably effective and at the same time perfectly harmless bleach. Massaged into face, neck and arms it softens and refines rough and coarse skin and bleaches red, sallow and discolored skin to a clear, rosy white. It also fades away tan and freckles. Nothing like this wonderful mixture can be bought ready to use, for half of its efficacy is due to the fact that it is used while fresh."

The reports of the Democratic National Convention were so interesting that Benjamin Burak, of 15 West Main street, Carnegie, kept his radio turned on until 1 a. m., June 29, he told Borough Council last night in protesting against interference by police. He said the police had ordered him to shut off the radio, dress himself and go with them to the police station.

He was not arrested, but, told to appear before Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillan, was later fined $18.90 on a charge of malicious mischief. The charge was preferred by Harry Harris, a neighbor. Council refused to take action, inasmuch as Burak had not been arrested and since the police had preferred no charge.

MILK-ICE FUND PASSES $400

The Emsworth Embroidery Club has contributed the $5 necessary to take The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund into its fourth hundred, and the Arcadians, members of a Sunday school class at the Mary S. Brown Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, other old friends of the fund, have started it growing towards another hundred with a gift of $10.

Among the 300 babies at present being cared for by the Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association, beneficiary of the fund, are nine sets of twins. There were 12 sets on the association's books during the winter, but three of these have recently reached the two-year limit, at which age they were dismissed. It has always been the policy of the association officials to care for their little charges up to the age of two, believing that with a foundation of good health built up during that time the little mites are given a sure start toward a sturdy childhood.

SKYWARD

By COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD

Byrd Defines Thrills of His First Flights

BYRD USES LIFEBOAT

INFLATED RUBBER

Commander Richard E. Byrd here demonstrates the type of inflated rubber lifeboat he used after the monoplane America fell into the water at Ver-Sur-Mer. The boat was paddled safely to land, averting possible tragedy. Read Byrd's story "Skyward" on this page.

Taken Through Many Stunts In Initial Adventure In the Clouds

What Has Gone Before

Commander Byrd was first trained for a seafaring profession before taking to aviation. He has explained how a gymnasium accident ruined his earlier plans and later how he begged before he was given a chance as a flier. He maintains that the dangers of flying are not near as great as they are supposed to be. He described the dangers of experimental or pioneering flying, and the crash of the America, in which he was injured.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Losing Flying Speed Dangerous

CHAPTER V.

CHANCE had given the action I needed. Still in a bit of a fog I presently found myself wearing helmet and goggles. A plane stood nearby with its engine turning over. Evidently it had been got ready for Chase. Before we climbed in Nat handed me some cotton.

"Stuff it in your ears," he shouted. "You'll be deaf if you don't."

Mechanically I did as I was told. We were in line with the barge grappling for the wrecked plane just ahead of us.

The plane was exactly like a land one, except that its wheels had been replaced by a pontoon which now rested in a truck. When we had taken our seats, mechanics pushed the trucks down a concrete ramp into the water. As our pontoon floated Chase gave her the gas.

We skidded thunderously away and swerved into the wind for a take-off. I felt the whole body rear back and spray flew high all around us. Gradually we assumed an even keel, the spray lessened, waves began to slap bumpily against the bottom of the float. We were in the air.

My pilot pointed to an instrument in front that read in hundreds of feet. I gathered this told our altitude. When the pointer read 4,000 feet he turned and smiled at me.

Fortunately I could not interpret this sign and the motors prevented talk. As a result I had a few seconds more of reasonable complaisance before the worst began.

I suppose Chase knew how I was feeling about the fatal crash I had just witnessed. The medicine he chose was to go through all the stunts he knew.

And stunting in those days, years ago, wasn't what it is today. We had a cumbersome seaplane under us, too.

We dived and rolled and slipped. We did a tail spin until I could almost see the rescue boat on its way out to us. There weren't even names then for some of the things Chase did. For minutes I couldn't tell which was sea and which was sky.

Suddenly we came out of a spin. He nudged me with a nod towards the stick.

The next instant I realized I had control of the plane. That was Nathan's idea of a joke on me. The responsibility cleared my brain.

It was perfectly idiotic for me to try to fly. I knew that. But this was no time to argue. I managed to keep our course straight ahead; nothing but common sense. But soon we headed downward, judging from the roaring of the engine and the wind singing through the wires. I glanced at the altimeter; it showed a loss of a thousand feet already. Luckily, Chase took her back before it was too late and brought us safely to earth.

I do not recommend such a method as a means to teach a novice. True, the passenger is more likely to grow dizzy than the pilot, for responsibility and the effort to control the plane have a steadying effect.

Further, the pilot knows at all times in just which way the plane is going to dip or swing, and so automatically prepares himself for the centrifugal forces set up. But too sudden a plunge into piloting may dampen the candidate's ardor.

My training now began in earnest, groundwork as well as flying. I remember taking apart my first airplane engine.

The vast number of cams, valves, rods, screws, bolts and other pieces fascinated me. They all seemed so dead, so unrelated when spread around on the greasy canvas at my feet. They were dead. To the novice they were as meaningless as so many cobblestones.

I remember that same afternoon we reassembled the engine. The mechanic with me became a little feverish as we neared completion of the job.

At first I thought he had the knock-off whistle on his mind. He puffed and panted over a Stilson wrench; he cut his finger and let it bleed unnoticed. . . . The whistle blew. He seemed not even to hear it.

We finished. A small crane panted up and swung the engine into place. Suddenly I had a streak of apprehension across the back of my neck, as if I had been touched with a cold finger. Did we have all the parts in place? Would the engine run? Would it hold up the plane? Would it live?

The moment came. Tired, greasy, silent, the mechanic and I stood and watched our engine roar into life, the plane it pulled slide across the field, crop the daisies and soar into the blue.

In that moment a new understanding of aviation came into my life; in watching the plane rise, fly, devour space, I felt that I had helped create something alive; I had contrived a creature that by widening the vista of human life and quickening the processes also thereby lengthening life; that by conquering the forces of wind and gravity had added to man's triumph over nature.

I made my first solo flight after about six hours' flying with an instructor. I had got the "feel" of the plane and was now confident that I could do as well alone as with the licensed pilot along. The rub was whether I would know how to handle my machine if trouble came.

First flight alone is probably the greatest event in an aviator's life. Never again does he feel the same thrill, the same triumph, as when he first eases back the controls and lifts his airplane clear of all natural support. Then there is that special and extra sensation when one banks and lands alone for the first time.

It is at this point that the new hand so often loses his nerve or lets his judgment slip, and crashes. Nowadays such accidents happen less frequently. Much more instruction is given before soloing. But in the war I have known new pilots to hop off alone with less than three hours in the air.

"Twenty minutes flying is enough," warned my instructor, Ensign Gardiner. This was the usual warning given on account of the strain of the first solo hop.

As my plane was shoved into the water I glanced back. The poor fellow could not hide his anxiety.

I knew he felt that if I lost my life it would be as much his fault as mine.

As the machine bobbed up I shot my throttle wide and pulled the controls back to ride high on the waves. When I had some speed I shoved the controls forward again to make the float coast.

A minute or so later I figured I could lift. With a fine feeling of elation I took off.

For what seemed a long time I flew straight ahead. It was too good to be true. I was flying at last. I glanced down at the water. It looked dark and sparkling in the fresh sea breeze just picking up.

The station seemed very hard and dead by comparison. Quickly I glanced back at my instruments. Nothing wrong yet.

I began to think what I'd do next. I concluded that I should try some landings. After all, if I could land safely I might then call myself a flier. Any one could get a plane up into the air. I nosed down gradually.

But when I leveled off I was going too fast. As it had been drummed into my head not to lose flying speed, I was taking no chances. I struck the surface with a big splash and porpoised—that is, leaped out—some distance beyond where I hit. But I didn't smash anything, which was a comfort. I tried three more landings in quick succession.

In all I kept at it for an hour and twenty minutes on that first flight. Gardiner got pretty worried about me. But when I finally taxied up to the landing I felt a confidence that was the pleasantest sensation I had ever known.

The big thing about flying is to come down safely.

As I came alongside, the mechanic in charge of my plane called out to me: "How'd she go?"

"Couldn't have been sweeter," I told him.

Instantly his rugged face melted into the sticky satisfaction of a man who has inherited a million dollars. And right away he began to nuzzle his engine like a mother cat who's just taken her own brood back.

The commandant happened along at that moment. "Attention!" barked some one, "according to Hoyle."

It was a secret joy to me to see the ill-concealed scowl of impatience on the mechanic's face. I knew at last how he felt. I had flown; had come down safe; I had him to thank for an engine that kept on running. What was military frumpery beside that?

In the ensuing period of my training I specialized in landings. I made hundreds a week. I made them from every altitude and in almost every position the plane could assume, with and without power. I tried stopping the engine suddenly a few feet above the water; again in the middle of a bank, and sometimes in midair, well up.

I knew an engine failure was far more dangerous at 50 feet than at 5,000. I wanted to be prepared. I found out at what angle I could climb and get down without a tail spin in case my engine stalled. I landed on smooth water and on rough waves. I found both difficult. Over glassy water it is hard to find the surface.

All this practice saved me from at least three fatal crashes in the early weeks of my flying, and a number of times since then.

As I progressed the fundamentals were continually being dinned into my head. I grasped that I must not try to stunt under 3,000 or 4,000 feet; that I must keep high enough, if possible, always to be within gliding distance of a landing place; to be certain to keep the flying speed of the plane at all times; to keep a sharp lookout for other planes; always to land into the wind.

I learned that the majority of casualties, outside a stalled engine, came from the pilot allowing his plane to lose its flying speed.

I learned first-hand that when this happened the plane stalled and dropped promptly into a nose dive, or dropped backward into a tail spin. (This dangerous speed I found to be different for different loads on the same plane.) If on a bank my plane sideslipped and then went into a tail spin.

With the other young pilots I learned that such stalls are generally caused by climbing too rapidly, by making a bad turn or gliding down at too flat an angle.

I soon found that if the turn were not properly made the plane would skid from centrifugal force, just as an automobile skids on a slippery street.

After I had made the grade with single pontoon planes I took some lessons in the twin pontoon type and in the big flying boats. In the latter there is no pontoon of any sort.

The fusilage is a big boat in itself. Crashes in these machines were the worst, because their engines were above and behind the pilot, smashing down on him if the plane made a bad landing.

When my time came for land machines they proved easier in several ways. The chief difference lay in the fact that one can judge distance and landing speed so much better over land than over water.

When the Navy Department through the commandant, handed me my pilot's wings and a clean bill of health I was sitting on top of the world.

Furthermore, the galvanized nail in my leg seemed to be holding tight.

SEEK FINANCIER'S BODY IN AIR MYSTERY

LONDON, July 6.—Mystery in the disappearance of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, noted Belgian financier, who is believed to have fallen from his Fokker plane as it crossed the English Channel, continued today as efforts were started to find the body.

Capt. Roland Drew, pilot of the Loewenstein plane, believes he knows fairly accurately the spot where Lowenstein might have fallen after opening—either accidentally or purposely—a door leading out of the cabin.

The plane was flying at about 4,000 feet at the time, Drew said, and there was considerable chance the body might have been smashed, but the pilot today planned to hire the Dover Harbor board tug and search for the body. The search will be near the spot where Drew believes the financier to have so dramatically brought an end to his dramatic career.

It was understood here that the search for the body had been ordered by Loewenstein's widow who at present is in Brussels. She has returned to Brussels and has refused to comment on the disappearance of her husband.

SCOUTS SUICIDE

However, commenting on reports that the Paris coroner's board had unofficially decided Loewenstein's death was suicide, M. Lauter, Loewenstein's chief aide in Brussels, is reported as saying:

"It is stupid to think it was suicide. Loewenstein was energetic and characterful. He had no reason to desire to die. I know the plane well and it was easy to mistake the door to the retiring room and the outside door."

Loewenstein's dramatic death, coming with such suddenness, had a very telling effect on the courses of many European capitals. The financier, who had offered to loan his own government $50,000,000 without interest and the French government $100,000,000 at 2 per cent interest, had claimed to be just ready to start on one of his greatest financing schemes.

He had been tremendously active of late, calling by trans-Atlantic telephone several times a day to the United States and only recently had made a visit to the United States in regal style.

Wednesday night he boarded his Fokker plane—one of his vast fleet of airplanes—to cross the channel. Apparently, friends said, he was in good humor. A valet and two secretaries accompanied him.

At about mid-channel the financier rose, said something to one of his secretaries about going to the retiring room, and then disappeared. Soon his valet discovered the captain had disappeared, found the outer cabin door open and ordered the plane brought down.

So vast were Loewenstein's financial operations that his dramatic disappearance led to marked declines in all Loewenstein holdings on the markets of Brussels, London, Paris and Berlin. In Brussels Tubize Silk fell 500 francs and Hydro-Electric lost 700.

TWO-ALARM FIRE

One of the biggest Independence Day season noises in the Homewood district was the gas explosion that blew out the rear of the home of Tony LaPresto, 7229 Finance street, setting fire to the house and the two adjoining houses, 7227 and 7231. Firemen were called to the scene on two alarms.

HE SHOULD BE A FRIEND OF YOURS

Wouldn't you like to drive to the office in the morning and speak thusly to your favorite "traffic cop" when he beams upon you—as though nothing ever happened to make him angry!—passing: "Good morning, Officer Rafferty"—or else, yell, "Hi Teddy!" Well, The Sun-Telegraph's series "Traffic Cops" will tell you how. This fellow today may be found in East Liberty, but don't spend the day hunting for him when The Sun-Telegraph will tell you his name tomorrow.

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS ROBERT BLAIR, MARRIED, 1656 JANCEY STREET, WHO IS THE CHAIRMAN AT CENTER AND PENN AVENUES, EAST LIBERTY. HE HAS BEEN ON "A CORNER" FOR EIGHT OF HIS TWELVE YEARS OF POLICING.

Did you read Al's eulogy on Tammany Hall? It was mighty touching. He said anyone was welcome, rich or poor, just so they was a Democrat. So it looks like the campaign issue this fall will be, "Who has done more for humanity, Tammany or the Red Cross?"

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE!! LOVE!!! by FRANK L. PACKARD

Bob Translates the Cypher, Memorizes It and Then Destroys It

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Bob finds Java Dick in Singapore, who promises his help in solving the mystery. The Idol contains the key to a great fortune. Bob hears the story of Hsi Yan's fight with his and receives the other Idol which containus the key to the cypher.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"NO, SAHIB," said Mindar Singh earnestly. "I have already told the Sahib that because the idols belonged to Kingsley Sahib, who was the Sahib's kin, therefore now they are the Sahib's. I ask nothing but the Sahib's shelter and protection of which also I have already spoken. And as for the food and rest, when it is the Sahib's pleasure, then I—"

"You shall have them at once!" Bob Kingsley repeated. He stepped to the foot of the companionway and called Nanu, then turned to Mindar Singh again. "Just one thing more, Mindar Singh," he said quickly. "This place where you were kept a prisoner, this hangout of Chen-shu and the others from Hsi Yan's Junk—where is it?"

Mindar Singh shook his head slowly.

"Sahib," he said, "in time it is certain that I could find the place again, but I could not tell the Sahib just where it is. This I know that it is near the shore, and in a direction that I also know; but it is, or so it seemed to me, Sahib, a great way beyond the city, for I was all these hours in reaching the Sahib's ship. And yet, Sahib, it may not be so great a distance as it seemed, for I ran not openly for fear of being seen, and many times I lost my way."

"Well, then, never mind about it now," said Bob Kingsley with a grim smile. "I don't think there'll be any one there tonight anyhow, for I've very good reason to believe, quite apart from what you've said, that they'll be scattered all over Singapore on the lookout for you! We'll talk about it in the morning. And here's Nanu. Nanu," he said as the other entered the cabin, "this is Mindar Singh, as he himself told you, who was the servant of my uncle at Kalawa. Give him food and all else that he desires, for he has been faithful to my uncle and to me, and his enemies are our enemies and he will remain here on board in hiding from them."

"Yes, Tuan," Nanu answered—and bidding Mindar Singh to follow him, he left the cabin accompanied by the other.

Bob Kingsley turned to the table. The cipher now! Copying the seven numerals, he inscribed them on his pad of paper; and then, with a queer smile twisting his lips, he returned the spurious cipher and the original slip of paper bearing the numerals each to the keeping of its respective idol, fitted the hands of the two white gods into place, and, going back into his stateroom, tossed back the idols into the washstand drawer. Obviously, they were of no further use to him!

From the stateroom, then, he returned to the outer cabin and stepped over to where an old Indian sword hung as an ornament from one of the bulkheads. And here, from between the hilt and the scabbard, he took the tiny ball of paper that contained the genuine cipher. With this smoothed out before him, he sat down at the table, and began to work. 9485261 transported into nine-four-eight-five-two-six-one, gave him 26 letters, as Mindar Singh had said. He set these down in a line, and under them wrote the letters of the alphabet. Thus:

nine four eight five two six one
abcd efgh ijklm nopq rst uvw xyz

It seemed simple enough! He began his attempt to translate the cipher. The first few letters were o, i, h, h, i. This gave him f, b, l, l, b—and got him nowhere. It evidently wasn't so simple! Something was wrong somewhere—or else Mindar Singh had not got Hsi Yan's explanation right!

Bob Kingsley, a furrow drawn between his eyes, stared for a good ten minutes at both the cipher and its key—and then he gave a sudden, satisfied jerk to his head. Yes, he had it now, or at least, he was on the track of it! There were only fourteen different letters in the key, therefore some of them must stand for more than one single letter in the alphabet. "E" as a key letter, for instance, appeared four times, and might be either, d, l, q or z; "i" also stood for four different letters, while "o" stood for three, and "h" for only one—and so on. Very well, then, try it that way, using all the letters that each key letter represented. Go back to the first few letters again! He set them down this way:

o	i	h	h	i
(ftx)	(bjov)	(l)	(l)	(bjov)

Could he make anything out of this by the process of elimination?

He tried the letters in combination after combination. Yes, by Jove, here it was at last! Like this:

(ftx)	(bjov)	(l)	(l)	(bjov)

And the next letter was an "x" which gave him a "w." The first word was "follow."

The problem was solved! He set to work patiently now—but it was close to the end of two hours, by which time his brain was fagged and his eyes ached, before he finished his task.

And then, grouping the letters into their individual words, Hsi Yan's cipher read:

CHAPTER XLV.

FOLLOW creek at north end of Laula one-half mile from mouth to crumbled hillside. The opening is beneath flat rock fifty paces due west by compass from burnt tree.

Bob Kingsley read this over and over again—and laughed softly to himself. Yes, he knew where Luala was. Luala Island. Hsi Yan's treasure! He knew by heart all that was on this paper in front of him. No good of it any more—and the cipher was no good any more! He got wearily to his feet, and brushed his hand across his eyes. Hsi Yan's treasure! Wealth! Chen-shu! Verna! Thoughts, a multitude of them—conflicting—surged upon him. But he was too tired to think. He tore up both the cipher and the paper on which he had translated it, dropped the shreds out of a porthole, and stumbled back into bed.

When he awoke again, it was for the second time at the sound of Nanu's voice. But he was not instantly alert as he had been before. He sat up in his bunk in a strangely dazed way. A sense of nausea was upon him, and his head throbbed brutally. He stared at Nanu, who stood before him.

"Tuan," said Nanu in a strained voice, "it is long past daylight, and the hour that it is the Tuan's habit to arise. But even so, I would not have come to the Tuan, except that we have just discovered than Mindar Singh, whom we thought dead with sleep, has gone."

"Gone?" echoed Bob Kingsley a little helplessly—and strove to gather his wits together.

"Yes, Tuan. And while it was yet dark, he must have slipped over the schooner's side and have swum to the shore, for his boat is still here. And now, Tuan, there is a strange odor in the cabin and in the Tuan's room."

Bob Kingsley shook his head.

"I don't smell anything," he said.

Lillian Returns the Picture to Dicky

WHAT Lillian said to Dicky when she gave him the unmounted photograph of Edith Fairfax which he had dropped I do not know for she spoke in a voice which was inaudible to me in the hall below from which I had not had time to retreat before the two met. But Dicky's reply could have been heard on the veranda.

"Oh! can the comedy, Lil!" he adjured her. "As usual you're exaggerating a very ordinary thing."

There was another murmur from Lillian accompanied by a derisive little laugh of the kind she herself calls her "Brand, No. 1, warranted to remove the skin." That it had accomplished its purpose, I knew when Dicky exploded into a profane ejaculation which would have horrified his mother but at which Lillian only laughed gleefully. Then I heard the violent closing of his door and knew that he had retreated completely worsted.

From the veranda where Mother Graham had gone directly from the car, came a nervous call:

"Margaret! Margaret! what was that noise? Did anybody fall?"

"No, a door slammed upstairs," I told her, hurrying out on the veranda. As I passed Katherine, seated where she could command a view of the hall, she gave me a little nod, patently a reassurance that she was mindful of her promise to see that Dicky had no chance to talk to me alone until after dinner. Uneasily I wondered if she had seen me pick up Edith Fairfax's photograph, but promptly banished the conjecture with the realization that she could not have known what the paper was if she had seen me pick it up.

Mother Graham's voice held a distinctly crabbed note as she answered my explanation. She does not like to be startled, and realizing the tremulousness of her nerves, due to her advancing age, I try to shield her from sudden noises as much as I can. But it is no easy task with Junior's small-boy exuberance. Dicky's masculine obtuseness and the tempestuous temperament of my faithful but noisy Katie.

"Richard, of course," Dicky's mother commented. "I haven't heard him shut a door decently in years. When he was at home I used to punish him when he did it, but he is not under my control now."

Her tones expressed the conviction that I alone was responsible for Dicky's breaches of good breeding.

The pealing of the dinner gong through the house gave my mother-in-law another opportunity for captious comment.

"That girl strikes that gong as if she were battering down an iron door," she said testily. "Can't you do anything with her, Margaret?"

The criticism was justified. Katie is altogether too energetic in her manipulation of the delicate sounding stick. But my mother-in-law knows as well as I do that Katie must be taken "as is." It is impossible to change her, and long association with her has taught us that the good qualities of our little maid outweigh the others. However I was far too experienced to attempt any defense of her to my mother-in-law. I placated her with a vague promise to speak to Katie, and was glad indeed when Dicky's descent of the stairs was almost coincident with Katie's announcement that dinner was served.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FINE FURS By EMILY BURTON

DORIS was a coatroom attendant at a big hotel and this was one of her busy nights. At midnight a guest arrived and left with her a gorgeous ermine wrap. She hung the lovely garment on a hook.

She took it down again and gazed in adoration upon it; then she slipped it around her own shoulders. She stood in front of the mirror admiring the effect. Then a sudden impulse seized her. Jerking off her maid's cap, she piled her soft golden hair high upon her head. Next she applied powder, lip-stick and rouge to her face. After that she draped the ermine cape around her graceful figure and glided out into the hall. She felt reckless by that time and a little intoxicated with the thrill of her daring. She didn't care if somebody did see her; she hoped somebody would.

Presently she found herself sitting in a darkish corner of the balcony, looking down at the dancers below. And then she found herself looking up into the eyes of a tall young man. She smiled, and, of course, he smiled back at her.

It was easy after that to begin a conversation; and they sat chatting about this and that for an hour or more.

Her pulse was beating high and her heart was singing low when at last she told him good-night.

It was by mere chance that they met again a few days later. They walked together for an hour. They had lunch in a quiet little tea room. Then she told him that she was going shopping and bade him good-bye.

During the weeks that followed they saw each other almost every day—far away from her home.

And every time she saw him, Doris loved Wilbur Knight more and more. That he was madly infatuated with her she did not doubt. His every word and look proclaimed the fact.

One day they sat in the park together and the conversation took a serious turn.

"I wish I had never seen you!" he exclaimed. "Your face haunts me day and night. I hear your voice at the most unexpected places. I can't get away from you, and I can't take you with me."

"You can't take me with you," she repeated.

"Oh, Doris, I love you," he declared, "and there's just one way out of this awful situation."

Anger flamed in her face. He had found out that she was a hotel servant, she thought, and he was not willing to reach down and pull her out of her poverty.

"Well, this is the last time I am ever going to see you," she declared. "Don't you ever come near me again."

Rather to her surprise and chagrin, he took her at her word; and it was a long time before she again heard from Wilbur Knight.

The weeks dragged by and at last Christmas came with its many benefit affairs. A charity ball brought several hundred guests to the hotel one evening during the holidays, and with them came Gentleman Joe Gaines in full dress attire.

Doris was again standing on the balcony where she could look down upon the dancers in the ballroom. But this time she wore no ermine wrap and her blonde curls were tucked away beneath her maid's cap. It was then that she saw Gentleman Joe bending low over the chair of a bejeweled old lady. She knew the famous crook, because he lived in the same block where she lived.

She saw his slender hand steal its way to the clasp that held the old lady's pearl necklace. She saw him ease the necklace into his pocket.

"He is robbing the guests!" she said under her breath.

A few minutes later she saw his hand slip into the satinwood box on the table which contained the entire receipts from the charity ball. That money was going to provide food and clothes for little children who otherwise would go hungry and cold.

"He shall not have it!" Doris shouted aloud, and down the steps she flew to the ballroom below.

The thief recognized her before she recognized him, and he made a dash for the door.

A waiter threw out his foot and tripped the rogue in his flight. The crowd closed in around them, just as the police appeared on the scene. Thereupon Gaines was handcuffed and relieved of the stolen jewels and money.

Doris glanced at the waiter who had stopped the thief. Then she looked again. She edged closer and touched him.

"You are Wilbur Knight, aren't you?" she asked.

"You!" he gasped.

Thereupon he took her by the arm and marched her off to a quiet spot in the upper hall.

"Is it really you, Doris?" he asked. "Why are you dressed like that?"

"Yes, it really is I," she replied defiantly. "And I'm dressed this way because I am a cloakroom girl."

"And you are not a rich man's daughter," he shouted. "Thank the Lord!"

Then without another word he gathered the dejected little figure into his arms and kissed her with the reverence that big men give to the women they love.

"Will you tell me who and what you are?" she demanded.

"I'm just a poor nut trying to work my way through college," he replied. "The first time I saw you here I was working extra. That was the only time I have ever been here until tonight, when I started in on a regular job as waiter—"

"And I thought you were a plutocrat," she declared, "and I didn't dare love you."

"And I thought you were a plutocrat," he repeated after her—"and I loved you anyway."

Roast Beef.
Baked Pears.
Browned Potatoes.
Stewed Squash.
Cabbage Salad.
Raspberry Roll.

A PIECE of bottom round, if tender and well-larded, will make a very good roast. Beef must be cooked in a very hot oven with plenty of suet. Pat flour and salt and pepper over the meat. If the round or rolled roast is used, place an extra piece of suet on the exposed surface. Baste often wtih the fat in the pan.

Allow 20 minutes to the pound, and an hour before serving place peeled or scraped potatoes abot the meat. In half an hour turn the potatoes and add drained canned pears. Turn once and when pears are browned and potatoes done, remove to a meat platter. Pour off all but two tablespoonsful of the fat, add two tablespoonsful of flour, and when well blended 1½ cups of water. Cook until thick and smooth.

CUT the squash in thin slices, put a quarter of a cup of water in the sauce pan and all the squash. Cook until tender, season with salt and pepper and a lump of butter. A suspicion of garlic or onion cooked with the squash improves the flavor.

To a cup of chopped cabbage add one-half cup of chopped celery and one minced green pepper. I try to get a pepper that is part red, for the pictorial effect.

I GENERALLY save the vinegar from sweet pickles to use on this cabbage salad, but as a substitute I use two level tablespoonsful of sugar, one cup of vinegar, salt and pepper and one-quarter teaspoonful of celery seed. When the sugar is dissolved in the vinegar, pour over the salad. Serve on lettuce leaves with a spoonful of mayonnaise on top.

Cut jelly roll in slices, cover with marshmallow whip. Place a spoonful of sweetened raspberries on top, then a spoonful of the marshmallow. Of course, whipped cream may be used in place of the marshmallow.

MAPLE WALNUT PUDDING CLEVER—Mix one cup brown sugar and ¼ cup cornstarch, add ½ cup boiling water slowly, then add to 1 cup scalded milk, stir until thick, cover and cook 15 minutes. Remove from fire, add ¾ cup walnut kernels and 2 egg whites beaten stiff. Pour into individual molds, rinsed with cold water. When ready to serve turn out and garnish with ½ cup heavy cream, whipped until very stiff and mixed with 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla, and remaining ¼ cup of whole walnut kernels.

MEAT LOAF—One pound round steak of beef; ½ pound cured ham, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, few grains cayenne, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon catsup, 2 eggs, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter and 1½ tablespoons Blue Ribbon Malt Extract (hop flavored), dissolved in the milk.

Grind the meat. Add the rest of the ingredients. Moisten at last with the milk. Form into a loaf, dust with flour or crumbs, and dot with butter. Bake in a hot oven at 400-degrees F.

Yes—a better way to wash dishes

Science brings forward Super Suds—beads of soap

New! Different! Quick!

WASH dishes the new scientific way—with Super Suds, the new bead soap which has swept from coast to coast in a few months' time!

Put your dishpan in the sink. Pour generously from the convenient, free-flowing Super Suds package. Turn on the hot water. Soap dissolves instantly—completely.

Why Super Suds replaces chips

Every woman knows that a soap which dissolves quickly and completely makes the tedious task of dishwashing easier.

Once women had only bar soap. Next came chips. Better—but chips were slow-dissolving, and oh, how much soap was wasted!

And now—through the discovery of these amazing new soap beads—you can get a perfect soap solution in ten seconds. Not one of the older forms of soap can dissolve so fast as Super Suds, the bead soap.*

Super Suds is not at all like chips, flakes, powders. It is soap in a new form—tiny hollow beads, tissue-thin. Four times as thin as chips—the thinnest soap ever made.

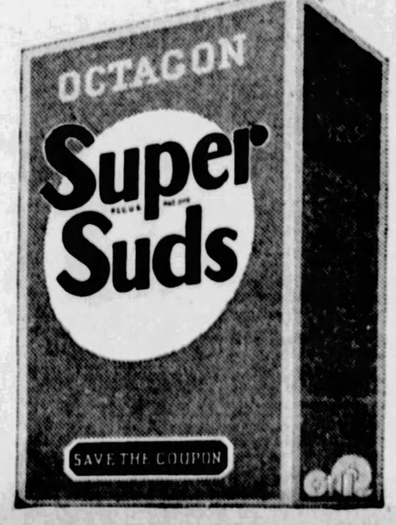
Super Suds makes glassware sparkle. Not a trace of soapy film on china. No need to wipe—just hot rinse and drain.

Use Super Suds for clothes too. Splendid in tub or washing machine. Use it all over the house—for windows, for painted woodwork, and for making the bathroom spick and span.

Full directions on every package, and a valuable Octagon coupon, too. Save the coupons and get lovely premiums.

Just ask your grocer for Super Suds—the biggest box of soap you ever saw for 10 cents.

Clothes whiter! . . . Quick, strong suds . . . No more soap stains . . . Gentle on clothes . . . Saves one rinsing . . . Saves hands . . . A sweeter, softer wash



*COMPARE! Make this test right in your own kitchen

A pan of warm water. Two strainers. In one a tablespoon of any chip. In the other the same amount of Super Suds. Plunge both strainers into water. Stir briskly while you count ten. Then—lift both strainers! In one strainer, half of the chips still there. In the other, Super Suds all gone! Quick-dissolving Super Suds saves dishwashing time, makes clothes whiter

FUSSELL FACES GIANTS IN OPENER TODAY

TUNNEY ANGRILY INSISTS BIG FIGHT IS ON

HUGE PLOT TO KILL BATTLE HINTED

BOSTON, July 6.—(AP.)—It may be gathered that the situation has become a trifle serious when the heavyweight champion of the world personally takes up the cudgels for Tex Rickard in the best interests of the title affair in which Tom Heeney is to be the party of the second part.

Taking cognizance, as the boys say, of the widely-circulated reports that developments might occur to halt or postpone the championship bout, Gene Tunney advises by telegraph he is "surprised" that anyone "would lend credence to pernicious rumor started by enemies of Rickard with purpose to belittle contest of the twenty-sixth and discredit Rickard.

"Can assure you," he concludes, "contest will be fought on July 26 regardless of what rumor creators and detractors say."

Some of the outlying returns are interesting. Among them a pronouncement credited to James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, on the way back from the Democratic national convention. The New Orleans Times-Picayune quotes Farley as follows:

"This coming bout at the Yankee Stadium between Tunney and Heeney will be pie for Tunney. I think he could lick Heeney with one arm. All Gene will have to do is to stand up and feed him one-two punches to the head. The match, I think, would have been a better one had Risko or Sharkey been selected to fight the champion.

"We don't expect the gate to go as high as $1,000,000."

"PALPABLE PLOT"

There is no side-stepping or pulling of verbal punches here. The champion's spokesman, Steve Hannegan, takes an even stiffer wallop at "Rickard's enemies."

"Palpable plot," is the way Hannegan brands the rumors, apathy and skepticism that have seemed to surround the big bout. He adds:

"Regardless of what rumors say, you can rest assured that contest will take place and with no other opponent than Tom Heeney, who has proved his right to match by his record of victories since his arrival in this country 18 months ago. Story he is to be replaced by Sharkey ridiculous as Sharkey is by virtue of his defeat at the hands of Risko eliminated."

This appears to make it unanimous. Rickard and Tunney both have made it clear there will be a fight at the Yankee Stadium for the heavyweight title on the night of July 26, top price $40, including the tax of 25 per cent. Since each has a somewhat strong personal interest in the affair, their emphatic rebuttal ought to discourage the doubters and skeptics even if it does not drive them entirely to cover.

Whether or not any "plot" is involved is something else. There is a chance for the fistic sleuths here. It is not clear to observers, however, just how the plotters, if any, have managed to influence the indifference that is manifestly widespread. Tunney blames it on "detractors," Rickard on just plain "knockers."

DOHERTY LEADS IN DECATHLON

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(INS.)—Kenneth Doherty, of New York, University of Michigan student and member of the Cadillac A. C., is the new national champion for the decathlon and leader of the 1928 Olympic team. He made a total of 7,600.25 points in the Olympic tryouts which began Tuesday and wound up yesterday.

James Stewart, star performer from Los Angeles, placed second with 7,533.25. Barney Berlinger, giant freshman from Pennsylvania, made third place on the team that will represent the United States in the Amsterdam Olympics.

LOCAL STARS IN ACTION

EVENTS IN SCHENLEY PARK POOL

Photos show local aquatic stars competing in holiday events in the Schenley Park pool. Miss Kucera is one of the best divers in this section. She was the winner of the fancy dive event for women. John Manko of the Oliver club won the 60-yard dash handicap, the start of which is pictured in the large photo.

Here is Miss L. Kucera, who represents the P. A. A., in another diving pose. She was one of the stars of the holiday meet witnessed by a large crowd. The P. A. A. team carried off the club honors in the competition.

FREE LINKS TEAM IS STRONG

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

CARL F. KAUFFMANN, national public links and city champion; Lieut. Samuel Graham, minion of the law; Bernie McFarland, locomotive engineer; C. J. Lunden, of last year's squad; Dick Wessell, taxi driver de luxe, and M. H. Boschert, a business man about town, make up the six men on Pittsburgh's national public links team which will compete against the country's best in the national amateur public links championship at the Cobbs Creek course in Philadelphia, July 31, August 1, 2 and 3. S. Walter Phillips, a member of last year's Harding Cup-winning squad, and M. Galido are the two alternates. It is the strongest team ever to represent Pittsburgh in the national event.

The 36-hole qualifying round, played yesterday on the Schenley Park municipal links, brought out some of the finest golf for the event ever registered, taking the field as a

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

JIM M'GIRR, the McKeesport boxing promoter, is in tough luck. His "natural" bout between Cuddy DeMarco of the Tube City, and Larry Brignolia of Erie, scheduled for Cycler Park one week from Monday night, is off, as the result of serious injuries suffered by DeMarco in his bout at Ebensburg, Pa., last Monday night with Joey LaGrey. Cuddy's mouth was so badly cut that he will be unable to train for several weeks, let alone fight during that time.

Now McGirr is looking about for a capable substitute to meet Brignolia, and if he does not find one who measures up he will call off the show entirely. LaGrey and Brignolia met in his opening show a few weeks ago and he doesn't think a rematch in a hurry will appeal to the fans, although it is a fact that the decision for Brignolia was off-color, LaGrey having piled up a sizable lead in the first seven rounds and losing only the last three, in which he sought to play safe and coast in.

COMES a postcard from Jack Zivic in Los Angeles, containing a message in which he touches on his technical knockout defeat by Jackie Fields last week. He intimates something was wrong with him in the battle, as follows:

"I don't know how I ever got as far as the seventh round. I don't recall anything in the bout and must have fought on instinct alone. It's all in the game, though, and I'm lucky I'm not hurt."

DICK Gibbons, Duquesne's promising young heavyweight, boxes Gene Baker of Johnstown in one of the bouts on the Ike McFowler-Ad Stone card at Johnstown, July 16. Joe Louder of Arlington avenue the young lightweight who looks so good, meets Snubby Liggett of Cadiz, O., on the Young Rudy-Terry Lingo bill at Washington, Pa., next Monday night. Promoter Bill Jolley of New Castle is trying to land Young Stribling, who scored his one hundred and first knockout the other night, as the next opponent for Emmett Rocco in his new Jolly Bowl.

YANKS RELEASE SHOCKER

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS.)—Urban Shocker, who won 18 games for the Yankees last season, was given his unconditional release by Miller Huggins today. Failing health and a failure to round into the condition which gave him ranking as one of the best pitchers in the game caused his passing from the diamond picture.

Shocker pitched only two innings for the Hugmen this season. He joined the team several weeks after the season opened, and was given a contract contingent on his ability to round into shape.

Shocker will return to his home in St. Louis and attempt to regain his health before deciding whether he will continue in baseball or enter business.

CHAMPS AWAIT START OF OLYMPIC TESTS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6.—(AP.)—Forty champion sprinters are waiting for the start of what promises to be the greatest sprint race ever run, the 100 meters dash, which will wind up today's Olympic try-out program at the Harvard Stadium.

Every section of the country will be represented. The winner probably will be forced either to equal or break the world's record of 10 3-5 seconds, for the fleetest field ever assembled will be pushing him on to the tape. To the victor will go not only Olympic recognition, but also the national sprinting title, now held by Chester Bowman, of the Newark A. C., who will defend it.

The meet itself promises to be the greatest ever held. Every national A. A. U. champion, except Willie Ritola, the Finnish distance runner, will strive to retain his laurels. The world record in every event is threatened. It will be a battle of youth against age, for many brilliant high school boys appear capable of tossing Olympic veterans into the athletic discard.

Youth will compete against age more often in the 100 meters than in any other contest in the two-day competition. Four youngsters, Frank Wykoff, of Glendale, Cal.; Claude O. Bracey, of Texas; Nathaniel George of Whittier College, and Frank Lombardi, Los Angeles school boy, threaten to displace Charley Paddock and Jackson Scholz from the American Olympic team and overshadow such brilliant performers as Charlie Borah, Al Miller, Frank Hussey, Henry Russell, Roland Locke and many another college hero.

Another contest which has assumed the "greatest of all time" aspect is the 800 meters run which will go the full half mile distance to give Lloyd Hahn, one of America's best Olympic bets, a chance to break the world record of 1 minute 51.6 seconds, now held by Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany.

Twenty-seven other stars, including Ray Conger, of the Illinois A. C.; Ray Watson, the national champion; Sam Martin, Pincus Sober and George Leness, will push Hahn to the limit.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(AP.)—Subject to the final approval of the Olympic committee, here are the 16 men selected for the United States Olympic team as a result of the

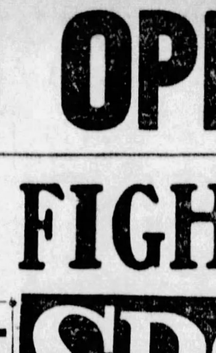
SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Owner Dreyfuss Least Disturbed Man in Pirate Plight—Patiently Awaits Turning Point and O. K.'s Team and Bush—What Has Become of America's New Tennis Stroke?

AMID the panicky feeling that prevails among the less experienced fans of the Pittsburgh district over the lowly position of the Pirates, a state made worse by a widely circulated series of groundless tales about internal dissension, a breach between Manager Bush and his players or between Bush and the club owner, coupled with the periodical that this player or that one, or a whole flock of them, have been violating the training rules, the coolest and least disturbed man in the entire situation is the one who has most at stake.



Barney Dreyfuss.

THAT man is President Barney Dreyfuss. As the owner of the club, President Dreyfuss naturally is in a position to have some slight knowledge of what is going on—almost as much in fact, as some of those on the outside who are trying to tell him how to run his business, and who are busy "exposing" the "inside details" of a lot of things that never happened.

The long experience of the Pirate owner enables him to remain unruffled in a situation like the present one. He cannot see what there is to be upset about, except that the Buccaneers having been losing, which is a part of baseball that may strike any team at any time.

HE denies all the rumors of trouble that have been spread, says perfect harmony prevails on the club and protests against what he terms grossly unjust charges that are being gossiped around against players who are playing hard and taking the best of care of themselves.

While calmly discussing the plight of the Pirates President Dreyfuss said last night:

"Of course, it is unfortunate that our club should have

PIRATES RELISH DAY OF REST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE one and only baseball circus from the famed Polo Grounds will sport itself this afternoon in competition with the Pirates. The two clubs were to have jumped off at Forbes Field yesterday in the opening game of the series, but the heavy rainfalls caused a postponement, the canceled game being moved back to tomorrow when it will help to make up a doubleheader.

The rest of yesterday was relished by the slumping Pirates. The cracked slab staff, in particular, seems to need succor and the extra day should have beneficial effects on the various sharpshooters.

FUSSELL ON MOUND

Fred Fussell, clever lefthander picked to meet the Giants in the opener, was among those who enjoyed the day of relaxation. Fussell had a sweltering duel with Jess Haines in St. Louis on Sunday. At the conclusion of his shutout success over the Redbirds, Fred was sick in the Pirate club house from his exertions. He recovered later and it is believed that he will be in a position today to give a good account of himself.

Had the Pirates battled the foe yesterday, they would have presented a new offensive. Manager Bush, after the bad defeats of Independence Day, decided to make an important change in his batting order. He will place Sparky Adams at the top of the order, Lloyd Waner dropping to the second notch.

WRIGHT AILING

Glenn Wright has been ailing in the past week, but if he is able to continue in action today he will be at his post in the shortfield; if not, Dick Bartell will be nominated for the job.

Clyde Barnhart is likely to be out again today. The heavy-hitting Pennsylvania Dutchman has a sore on his back that has taken him out of the lineup temporarily.

The double bill set for tomorrow will help to enliven the Pie Traynor festivities. Traynor will be honored during the afternoon and in the evening at the Schenley Hotel he will be tendered a testimonial dinner.

TO HONOR TRAYNOR

A. K. (Rosy) Rowswell, chairman of the Traynor festivities, expects a big turnout in honor of Capt. Pie at the dinner party. The dual bill in the Oakland lot is sure to attract a big throng in view of the hook-up with the Traynor Day activities.

Ervin Brame, tall righthander who was sent to Indianapolis in the deal involving Bill Burwell, has returned to the Pirates, Burwell having been sent back to the Hoosiers.

Brame helped to get Bruno Betzel's team on the top in the A. A. race. He will be missed by the Hoosiers, but the Pittsburgh club, naturally, has to look after its own interests.

Brame was one of the most impressive pitchers in the spring training camp but he, like other sharpshooters, went into a slump in the cold weather attendant the season's opening. The work at Indianapolis apparently was just the right thing to get him in good shape.

LaCoste Wins Net Title

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 6.—Rene LaCoste, of France, won the Wimbledon tennis championship today, defeating his countryman, Henri Cochet, defending champion, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

LaCoste completely outplayed his countryman. In the first set Cochet had no control over his game. His backhand was weak, he overdrove and he misjudged cross shots from the net, where LaCoste repeatedly passed him with brilliant drives that clipped the corners and side lines.

Occasionally Cochet showed flashes of championship form with an easy style and with brilliant service aces of crosses.

The crowd attending the match became excited only when the two Frenchmen fought for the final two points that mean victory or defeat. When LaCoste won the last point on a drive that Cochet smashed over the baseline he threw his racquet in the air.

Gusty winds bothered the players all through the match.

WILLS-HUNTER LOSE

Miss Helen Wills and Francis T. Hunter, of the United States, were eliminated in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles by Miss Elizabeth Ryan, of California, and P. D. B. Spence, of South Africa, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Miss Ermyhtrude Harvey and Eileen Bennett, the English pair, eliminated Daphne Akhurst and Esna Boyd, of Australia, from the women's doubles, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

SPANISH GIRL TO PLAY

Senorita Elia De Alvarez, of Spain, who has been suffering from an attack of laryngitis, stated this morning that she would be able to meet Helen Wills in the final of the woman's singles championship tomorrow. It had been feared that she would be unable to continue in the play.

Despite her decision to play, Senorita Alvarez did not appear happy over the prospect. Swathed in wool wraps from throat to feet, she huddled before a roaring fire in the Richmond Hotel, where she is staying, and hoped for inclement weather tomorrow.

In the doubles play yesterday, Big Bill Tilden and Francis Hunter, defending champions, were put out in the semi-finals by the Australian combination of Gerald Patterson and John Hawkes, and George Lott and John Hennessey were eliminated by Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, of France. The Tilden-Hunter and Patterson-Hawkes duel was one of the most thrilling ever witnessed at Wimbledon, the Aussies winning by 7-9, 7-9, 6-4, 6-4, 10-8. Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the only other American to play yesterday, advanced in both the women's doubles and the mixed doubles.

whole. The competition this year was more closely contested and better scores were turned in, this despite the fact that the field wallowed in mud and was tremendously handicapped during the morning round by a heavy rainstorm and again in the afternoon by a lighter one. It was a soggy, most undesirable layout that saw the first 18 holes of play.

There were two heroes of yesterday's play—Kauffmann and Sam Graham, who tied for the medal honors with 137 each. Kauffmann had things pretty much his own way last year, when he scored a 64 and then a 67 to lead the field by many strokes. Not so yesterday, for the police lieutenant stepped off through rain, mud and the rest of the inconveniences and chalked up a sweet 67 to lead the first 18 holes. It was Carl's magnificent 65 of the afternoon round, which is one under par, that brought him head high with Graham, that gentleman scoring 70 on his last trip. The scores:

WON FAME "STAYING" WITH JIM JEFFRIES

MONTREAL, Que., July 6.—(AP.)—Jack Munroe, prospector, miner and soldier, but best known as the man who, unknown at that time, stood up to Jim Jeffries for four rounds when the latter was champion of the world, is dead.

His body was found in his cabin near Royon, Ont., by two men who were attracted to the place by the barking of his dog. He evidently had been dead for several days.

Munroe, one of the little band of survivors of the original "Princess Pat" regiment, had led a colorful life. He was a native of Canada. When the South African war broke out he enlisted and served throughout the conflict, being decorated several times for bravery.

MAYOR OF CITY

Coming home from the war he took up mining and when the great silver rush started in 1906 he was mayor of the city of Cobalt.

In 1903, Jeffries was touring the country challenging any man to stay in the ring with him for four rounds. Munroe, described in old press notices as a natural fighter, accepted and stayed the limit. He was credited with a knockdown of the "big fellow" during the course of the bout. Jeffries knocked him out in two rounds in a later engagement.

Encouraged by his success with Jeffries, Munroe came to the United States and won a newspaper decision over Tom Sharkey at Philadelphia in 1904.

When the World War broke out Munroe immediately joined the "Princess Pats." As he was so broad of shoulder it was difficult to find a uniform to fit him in the standard army sizes.

LOVER OF DOGS

Always a lover of dogs, Munroe took a puppy with him into the service. Told that he could not take the dog to France with him, he smuggled it aboard the boat. Taken from him when he landed in France, Munroe stole it out of quarantine and got it into the trenches. It was with him all through the war and the dog whose howling led to the finding of his body is believed to be the same one. He had been a prospector since the war and lived alone in his isolated little cabin.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

failed to run true to form during the first part of the race, but after all there is nothing mysterious about it, nothing to cause all the ridiculous stories that are going around, and that will not be credited for an instant by any person having the slightest knowledge of baseball.

Ervin Brame

"THE trouble is simply what every baseball man can see short time. It has been explained after watching the club for a very on several occasions. Anything can happen in baseball and this is one of the things—the simultaneous loss of form by several of our first-string pitchers.

"The pitchers offspell upsets the hitting, the fielding, and the general play of the other players on the team, and naturally there is a loss of confidence and steadiness.

"All that we can do is wait and hope. There is bound to be a break in conditions and the breaks that set us right again, and that change may come at any time—in a day or an hour."

The Pittsburgh magnate said that the rumors of dissension on the club, or between the players and the management, that Manager Bush was to be released, were too absurd to be discussed.

"SUCH drivel is not worthy of being dignified by a denial, but if it will help to keep our patrons from being misled I assure you that there isn't a single word of truth in it. I am satisfied with the club and with Manager Bush. I know what they are up against and I could not expect them to accomplish any more under the present conditions. I know that Manager Bush and the team are trying as hard as they possibly can, and that it is not their fault that things are going against them. Pittsburgh has a real ball club, and as soon as things begin to change for the better, as they are bound to do, you will see a steady advance on the part of the Buccaneers."

Bill Tilden

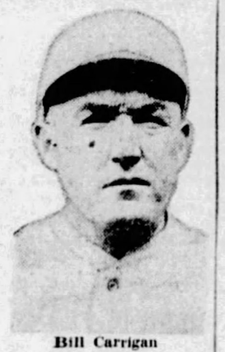
FORBES FIELD patrons tomorrow will get their first look at Pitcher Ervin Brame in action since he was brought back from Indianapolis in exchange for Pitcher Bill Burwell. Skipper Bush has chosen Brame to pitch one of the games of the Saturday double-header against the Giants, with Carmen Hill working on the mound in the other half of the bargain bill.

After the additional seasoning he has obtained in the American Association, where he won five games and lost one (latter score 1 to 0), the right-hand slab recruit, who is also a real hitter of the slugging type, is expected to show a vast improvement over his early spring form.

WITH all the American entrants except Miss Helen Wills in singles and Miss Wills and Frank Hunter in doubles swept out of the Wimbledon tennis tournament, the average American fan may be pardoned for wondering what has become of the famous new Douglas Wright stroke, with which Tilden, Hunter, Lott and Hennessy were tipped as being about to revolutionize tennis. It was said the Americans were practicing the stroke in secret and would spring it at Wimbledon and in the Davis Cup games in France, but from this distance it appears that the only thing they have succeeded in doing is in continuing to keep it a secret.

Not one tennis expert on the ground at Wimbledon was able to detect the slightest change in the American method of walloping the ball.

In fact, the only suggestion of a stroke which added power and greater accuracy in "hitting it where the other player isn't," was produced by an Australian player, Gerald Patterson, in the doubles match against Tilden and Hunter yesterday.



Bill Carrigan

THE manner in which the Boston American League club has performed to date, even though it fell into seventh place by losing the only game played in the two leagues yesterday, shows again the managerial ability of Bill Carriagan. Boston finished eighth the last three years and five times in the last six years, but when you note how Carrigan has developed such pitchers as Morris, McFayden and Ruffing, improved Harriss by changing his style, to say nothing of the way in which he has brought Brookline's Bill Regan forward, it must be admitted that Carrigan is one of the smartest pilots handling a team anywhere.

HEISEY COPS SHOOT

Dr. W. C. Heisey of McKeesport, crack shooter, took high honors in the trapshooting meet at the Wilkinsburg Gun Club yesterday. He smashed 98 out of 100 clays. In the professionals' event, A. B. Mac Mullen also cracked 98 out of 100 and defeated J. Mowell Hawkins by six birds. The class trophies were won by Dr. W. C. Heisey, E. F. Brinker and C. W. Wernke.

Von Porat Kayos Sandy

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP.)—Otto Von Porat, sensational Norwegian heavyweight, scored a technical knockout over Sandy Seifert, Pittsburgh heavyweight, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round fight at Mills Stadium last night.

Seifert, after he had been knocked down for a count of nine in the third round, fell to the canvas under a heavy barrage of blows in the fourth and was waved to his corner by Referee Davy Barry.

It was the first time Seifert had ever been knocked out. He was no match for the punching Norwegian. Von Poraet came within an ace of stopping Seifert in the first round when he knocked him to his knees with a right uppercut. In the second Seifert began bobbing and weaving in an effort to escape Von Porat's heavy blows to the chin. In the third Von Porat got the range and floored him with a right and left to the jaw. Seifert staggered to his feet and backed into a corner, apparently ready to drop, but Von Porat was unable to get in his finishing punch.

In the fourth Von Porat floored him with punches to the head and body and Seifert rolled over unable to continue. Seifert weighed 188 pounds and Von Porat scaled 191½.

Relatives Can Aid In Junior Event

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

WITH the field for The Sun-Telegraph's first annual West Penn amateur junior golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, which is to be played on the municipal links in Schenley Park, on Thursday, July 12, reaching enormous proportions, the assistance of fathers, brothers and other relatives of the boys participating, who are familiar with the rules of the game of golf, would be of great help, providing they wish to assist in putting the tournament over.

In order that there may be no question as to accuracy in scoring, The Sun-Telegraph would appreciate any volunteers who can be among those present on the day of the junior event to help in scoring for foursomes other than the ones in which their own relatives or friends are playing.

If there are any persons who care to assist in this manner, they may write or call upon the Golf Tournament Editor, The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh.

The field at this time is nearing the 500 mark, and the entries will not close until Monday. The Sun-Telegraph's tournament marks the biggest golf event of the season in Western Pennsylvania so far as entries are concerned.

Two classes of amateur juniors will participate in the 18 holes of medal play, the Junior Class, for boys between 15 and 18, and the Sub-Junior Class, for boys 14 and under. Any boy 18 years of age or under who is not attending an institution of education higher than high school grades, and has not accepted money for caddying after his sixteenth birthday, is eligible to the competition. There is no entry fee—everything is free.

LIFEBUOY Shaving Cream

No more tenderface ..from shaving

NOW you can say goodbye to tenderface! For Lifebuoy Shaving Cream, with its healing, double-dense lather, ends all burning, smarting and irritation by removing the cause.

Most shaving irritation is caused by friction—the rough scraping of razor over skin. There is only one way you can end this friction. That is by use of a lather that is dense enough to completely lubricate the skin.

Ordinary lather cannot do this. It is too light and frothy. Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather, however, is double-dense—has double capacity for holding water, and possesses unusual penetrative powers.

You hardly feel the razor

Crowding right down into the pores, this remarkable lather hugs the face so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed.

Since there are no unprotected spots, your razor scarcely seems to touch you. You get the easiest, smoothest shave you have ever known—yet every trace of hair is gone.

Soothes and heals, too

And that isn't all. Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same antiseptic ingredient as Lifebuoy Health Soap. Keeps skin clear, smooth, healthy—and helps protect against infection. Actually a shaving cream and face lotion in one.

Wage-Cutting Out-of-Date; Price-Cutting to Go Next?

—By B. C. FORBES—

DOES price-cutting pay? Is it wise? Is it sound? Several industries are face to face with this problem.

NOT so very long ago employers hastened to reduce wages whenever depression set in. That was accounted the prudent, the necessary thing to do in an effort to make ends meet or keep down losses.

That line of action has become extremely unpopular and much less common. The hard-hit textile industry and the chronically-mismanaged coal industry are almost the only important industries that have recently insisted upon wage reductions on a large scale. Certain other industries, including oil, have experienced unprofitable conditions, but instead of resorting to the old-time practice of sweeping cuts in wages, they have striven to avoid that course.

REDUCTION of wages having become, so to speak, out of date, are we going to witness the acceptance and adoption of a new attitude towards price-cutting?

SUCH an evolution in economic reasoning is far from unthinkable. Indeed, would it not be logical were those engaged in an industry to say: "We refuse to resort to cutting wages, although demand is very slack, and we refuse also to cut prices to unprofitable levels?"

Charles M. Schwab, addressing a gathering of hardware manufacturers and distributors, made this statement:

"We of the Iron and Steel Industry have reached the point where it is not profitable to get 4 or 5 per cent on what we are able to do. In the last few years the Bethlehem Steel Company has spent $80,000,000 in bettering its processes. After four years I find we have reduced our cost an average of $7 a ton but that we have sold for an average of $8 less a ton than before we started the program. There is from $5,000,000,000 to $5,500,000,000 invested in the steel industry, and, as a whole, it is not earning 5 per cent on the investment.

"Manufacturers must have confidence in each other. You ought to have a committee along the line of the motion picture industry's plan and the czar for baseball."

JUDGE GARY'S pet expression in the later years of his life was "Fair and Reasonable." Price-cutting can be fair and reasonable, or it can be carried to unfair and unreasonable lengths.

Price-cutting becomes unfair and unreasonable when it renders impossible the earnings of a legitimate profit and the paying of good wages.

IN certain industries it is the weaker concerns that usually start price-cutting. In other industries the stronger concerns, unable to get orders to keep going, start price-cutting warfare.

Price-cutting battles, when they rage fiercely, commonly cause the bankruptcy of the weak and injure temporarily the strong. Everybody suffers, including, in many cases, hundreds of thousands of investors. Although getting the benefit of unduly low prices for a time, even the consumers suffer in the long run, for usually a point is ultimately reached where the victors contrive to make up for their losses.

THIS whole problem of prices is not as simple as A. B. C. America has won her way to industrial supremacy mainly by her ability to produce at lower prices than the rest of the world. Healthy, wholesome, desirable price-cutting must always be preceded by the successful lowering of costs. American genius has made possible the lowering of costs on a scale which has amazed foreign competitors in many lines.

The more costs can be cut without injuring wages or legitimate profits, the stronger this nation becomes.

THE trouble now afflicting not a few industries, however, is that price-cutting is being carried farther than cost-cutting has been carried—just as instanced by Mr. Schwab. That brand of price-cutting is short-sighted, uneconomical, disastrous. "Pass a law" is not the cure to be attempted. The cure can come only from the exercise of common sense, fairness and reasonableness by those composing each industry.

COKE OUTPUT SHOWS LOSS

CONNELLSVILLE, July 6.—The Courier Says: The statistics of coke production during the first half of 1928 show in very concrete form the severity of the depression prevailing in the industry during the current year. More precisely speaking the statistics indicate the prolongation in 1928 of the movement which had its beginning 14 months ago when, in April, 1927, the downward trend became pronounced and which has continued more or less persistently since that date, except during February and March when there was a graduai return to higher figures. The maximum reached on that upward movement was, however, but 72,500 tons, or very nearly the level in the week of 1928, corresponding to last week.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, June 30, was 37,300 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connellsville, 9,200, an increase of 60 tons; Lower Connellsville, 28,100, a decrease of 1,700 tons, or a net decrease of 1,640 tons, as compared with a total decrease of 5,490 tons during the preceding week.

The market remains quotable as follows:

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE wasteful bee hive coke oven is rapidly passing as a factor in industry. During the last decade the construction of by-product plants has steadily progressed. Eventually the movement will eliminate the H. C. Frick Coke Company as the chief maker of coke for the United States Steel Corporation. Ultimately this subsidiary will confine its activities to coal mining.

At one time early this year the H. C. Frick Coke Company had its ovens entirely shut down, and the entire coke requirements of the Carnegie Steel Company were being supplied by by-product plants. For some years the Steel Corporation will continue to coke some coal by the old method, but the days of the bee hive oven are numbered.

A PITTSBURGH organization has been the dominant factor in bringing about this change. The Koppers Company has built the great majority of by-product plants and has been the chief factor in the development of a new industry.

A YEAR ago Koppers completed additions to the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel Company which gave it the greatest by-product coking facilities in the world.

The addition consisted of 348 new ovens with a capacity of 3,887,250 tons of coal a year. With the old ovens this gave the plant a total consumtion of 6,630,298 tons of coal annually.

The ovens and coal-handling facilities at Clairton cost $16,000,000. The entire improvement, including changes in coal-mining and loading facilities, cost $25,000,000.

THE movement of coal was transferred from railroads to the company's river fleet. At Palmer, on the Monongahela River, docks and underground conveyors were built to move the coal directly from the mines, several miles from the river, to be loaded on barges. This was in addition to similar facilities at the Colonial mines, near Brownsville.

THE development of the by-product oven is taking coke production from small, isolated plants near the mine mouths to large centralized installations adjoining steel mills.

Coke weighs less than coal, so that it was cheaper to operate bee hive ovens at the mines and to haul the coke. But the chief value of the by-product plants is in the gas produced. To use this efficiently, coking must be done near the mills.

In addition it is possible to heat the ovens with waste blast furnace gas, so that the entire output of by-product gas can be used in open-hearth furnaces and for other purposes.

THE tremendous waste in the old ovens and the savings from by-product ovens are apparent when it is realized that one ton of coal placed in a bee hive coke oven yields 66 per cent of its weight in coke. The rest is lost in smoke.

In a by-product oven a ton of coal yields 77 per cent coke, 10,000 cubic feet of gas, 5 gallons of tar, 20 to 25 pounds of ammonium sulphate and 1.1 to 3.8 gallons of benzol products.

These last may be separated into several different substances used for dyes, paints, explosives and solvents, or they may be left together and mixed with gasoline to make a no-knock motor fuel.

THE Koppers Company also has built and is operating by-product plants throughout the country which sell their output of gas to public utilities for domestic and industrial use. The coke produced is either sold to the same utilities for production of water gas or it is marketed for fuel purposes.

The highly specialized nature of by-product coking and of the sale of the many by-products is tending to make separate industries of gas distribution and gas manufacture. This is also broadening Koppers' activities by making it an operator of by-product plants as well as a builder of them.

A NEW domestic fuel has been developed from the by-product coke industry. Screenings of coke less than 2 inches in size are unsatisfactory for blast furnace fuel, but they can be burned in house furnaces. By-product coke is not hard and metallic like bee hive coke. This difference in its structure makes it much more satisfactory for household use.

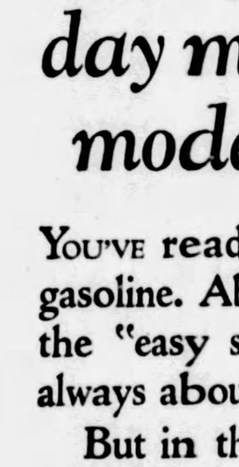
An extra-powered Gasoline that perfectly fits present-day motors and meets every modern driving condition

YOU'VE read about "extra power" in such-and-such gasoline. About "knockless" features in another. About the "easy starting" capacity of another. . . . Almost always about some lone outstanding quality.

But in this new-type Atlantic you get all the qualities you look for in a motor fuel. Not one is over-emphasized at the sacrifice of others. Each is distinctly noticeable in the performance of your own motor. There is no imagination about it.

Get a filling of Atlantic. Check your observations against these positive claims made by one of the oldest, largest and most progressive refining organizations in the country:



Extraordinary ease in starting. ¶ Unusually quick pick-up. ¶ "Knockless," carbonless combustion. ¶ Smooth, full-powered motor performance at all throttles and temperatures. ¶ Extra power and mileage economy.

Engineering Tutors Here Are at Technical Fount

Instructors of electrical engineering from educational institutions throughout the land have become Pittsburgh pupils r a number of weeks. They are students of the school of the ciety for the Promotion of Engineering Education, conicted with the co-operation of the University of Pittsburgh d the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

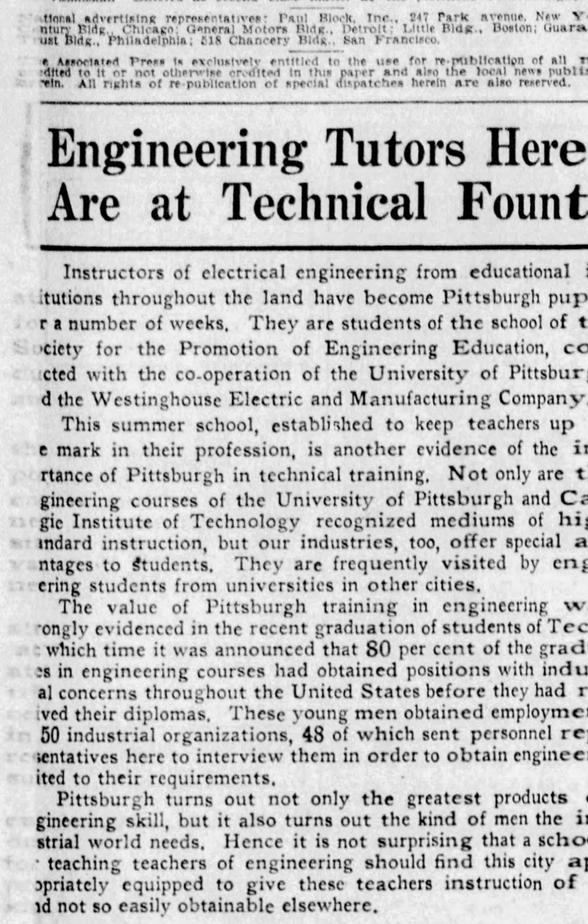
This summer school, established to keep teachers up to e mark in their profession, is another evidence of the imrtance of Pittsburgh in technical training. Not only are the gineering courses of the University of Pittsburgh and Cargie Institute of Technology recognized mediums of high ndard instruction, but our industries, too, offer special adntages to students. They are frequently visited by engiering students from universities in other cities.

The value of Pittsburgh training in engineering was rongly evidenced in the recent graduation of students of Tech, which time it was announced that 80 per cent of the gradues in engineering courses had obtained positions with indusal concerns throughout the United States before they had reived their diplomas. These young men obtained employment 50 industrial organizations, 48 of which sent personnel repsentatives here to interview them in order to obtain engineers ited to their requirements.

Pittsburgh turns out not only the greatest products of gineering skill, but it also turns out the kind of men the instrial world needs. Hence it is not surprising that a school teaching teachers of engineering should find this city appriately equipped to give these teachers instruction of a nd not so easily obtainable elsewhere.

Just How It Works

When Air Fighters Find Targets.



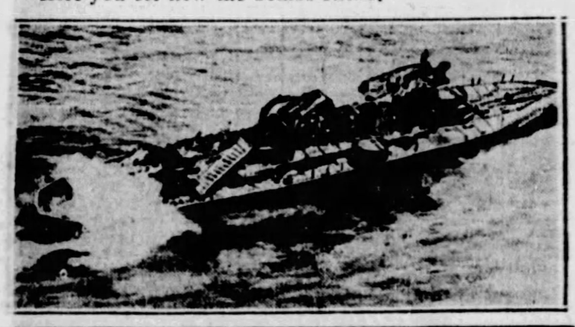
THE FIRST BOMB DROPS.

Readers, consider these three pictures.

Above, an airplane attack on what was once the great erman dreadnaught battleship Ostfriesland, that powerful at in which the Kaiser rejoiced, called "The unsinkable ttleship."

A few bombs from the air sunk her easily enough.

Here you see how the bombs strike.



THE "UNSINKABLE" SINKING.

The second picture shows you that same "unsinkable ip" after a brief, inexpensive bombing, ready to roll over d go to the bottom, which she did a few minutes later.

The third picture shows the protection of the fighting airane, a thick smoke screen in which the air fighters are inisible. Planes operate together. Some very fast, going 200 les an hour or more, will drop light bombs to clear the decks guns and crew, wiping out all the anti-aircraft machinery.

Then will come the heavy bombers, protected by smoke reens that their swifter friends have laid down. They will op bombs containing as much as 5,000 pounds of deadly NT, as many as needed.

SMOKE—THE FIGHTING PLANE'S PROTECTION.

In a recent experiment, after the machines with their light mbs had finished, instead of merely clearing the decks of ti-aircraft guns they had sent the ship to the bottom. No avy bombs were necessary.

Don't you think these three pictures ought to persuade ur Government to buy airships that cost seventy-five THOUAND dollars instead of buying battleships that, with coal nders and other accoutrement, cost seventy-five MILLION ollars each?

Isn't it better to buy inexpensive submarines to attack om below, and cheap airplanes to attack and destroy from ove, instead of costly, useless battleships?

Don't you suspect corruption somewhere when you see ublic officials persuaded to continue the purchase of $75,00,000 battleships which are nothing more than helpless tarets for airplanes and submarines of other countries?

Write to your Senators and to your Congressmen if you ink this country should spend enough money on airplanes d submarines to keep this nation really protected.

TROUBLE AFOOT

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Laws of Falling

"I understand that a falling body moves a certain number of feet the first second—16 I think. At any rate there is no fraction. How comes it that there is such an accurate coincidence between these two measures of time and distance? One is a division of a natural period and the other a man-made measure that, as far as I know, has no rhyme or reason, and might easily have been a trifle shorter or longer."—C. P., Troy, N. Y.

WHAT you apparently mean to ask is why the distance fallen in the first second should be an exact number of feet with no fraction. But you are mistaken about the distance; the body does not fall an exact number of feet with no fraction. For the sake of round numbers, when great accuracy is not required, it is usual to speak of this distance as 16 feet. In fact, however, it is, in the mean, (for it is not a fixed amount e erywhere on the earth), about 16 feet 1 inch. For scientific calculations the double of this distance is employed, and that is 32 feet 2 inches, which is known as the "acceleration of gravity," denoted by the letter g, being the increase of velocity that a falling body experiences in each successive second.

Thus in the first second the velocity is 0 at the start and 32.166 at the end. To get the mean add the extremes and divide by 2. The sum of 32.166 and 0 is 32.166, half of which is 16.083, which is substantially 16 feet 1 inch. This is the distance fallen in the first second.

In the second second the body, which is already falling at the rate of 32.166 feet per second, adds 32.166 feet to that velocity, making its total velocity at the end of the second second 64.332 feet. Half of the sum of the two velocities is 48.249 feet, the distance fallen during the second second, and that plus the distance fallen in the first second (16.083 feet) gives 64.332 feet as the total distance fallen during the two seconds.

But now you must understand, as already remarked, that the acceleration of gravity, or the quantity called g, is not the same everywhere on the earth. The force of gravity is the resultant of the earth's attraction combined with the centrifugal force of its rotation. It varies both with distance from the equator and with distance from the center of the earth. The centrifugal force is greatest at the equator and zero at the poles. Its tendency is to diminish the force of gravity. The earth's attraction is greatest at the poles because the polar diameter is less than the equatorial and least at the equator. Through the combination of these two forces (terrestrial gravitation and centrifugal force) it comes about that gravity at the poles is about 1-190th greater than on the equator.

In a general way the force increases as you go from the equator toward either pole, but there are many local variations due to inequalities of density in the interior of the globe. Gravity also varies with altitude above sea-level. These variations are not of much importance in the ordinary concerns of life, but they are interesting and important in the scientific study of the shape and internal constitution of our planet. Owing to the local variations just spoken of the direction of the plumb line is not everywhere precisely the same, or not exactly toward the geometrical center of the earth. But for ordinary purposes we may treat it as if it were invariable. A steep, lofty mountain tends slightly to draw aside a plumb line, and on some coasts the attraction of high neighboring land tends to elevate the level of the adjacent sea water.

Among the best means of measuring the intensity of gravity is by the vibrations of a pendulum, the vibrations increasing in speed with increase of gravity. This method has revealed many peculiarities in the finer outlines of the earth, whose precise shape is not in all respects yet known. But these are among the most delicate refinements of science.

Unfair

THREE Americans in every five stay away from church and get their religious impulses indirectly.

That is bad for them and unfair to the church. Suppose we treatel the school in this way. What would be left to keep us on the right path?

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

There's a Time and Place

DON'T talk business and financial affairs at social gatherings.

Don't talk high finance with the man on a salary.

If you cannot get away from your business thoughts long enough to join in general conversation with the persons you meet in a social way, you would better cut out the social hour and stick to your office.

One of the greatest bores is the man who upon all occasions injects the element of business into visits with friends.

Most of those who take part in social affairs do so with an idea of relaxation.

They want to get away from the grinding thoughts of dollars and cents.

If they desired to continue their thoughts about margins and profits they would have remained in an environment of that sort.

There is a time and a place for everything.

The social gathering is certainly not the place to discuss business transactions.

You defeat your own purpose when you talk business at social gatherings.

Payment

HOW can I pay you for your smile,
A tender smile and gay,
That helps me conquer mile on mile
Along the way?

How can I pay you for your cheer
That never failed me yet?
I must be, after many a year,
Deep, deep in debt!

How pay for love well-nigh divine,
Unfaltering and true,
Whose rays like sun and starlight shine
On all I do?

Oh, I shall pay for smiles with smiles
And give you for your cheer,
An answering gladness that beguiles
Your hours of fear.

And for your love I would not dare
To offer aught less fine;
Take it, I beg, full share for share,
This love of mine!

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE'S getting to be a lot of trouble about the young folks and the kind of stuff they read. Some of the old ones are just kept busy all the time, reading the off-color novels and magazines, so as to find out if they are fit for the young people to look at.

I heard about a girl that was asked at a Sunday school meeting if she ever read this here sex literature that is so common now.

"No," she says, "all that stuff that comes to our house is too dirty for me. You see, mamma and papa and two uncles and three aunts have to get a crack at it first, and by the time it gets to me it's just naturally all wore out and soiled, so I pass it up."

Putting Him to Shame

WITH a smothered curse the man turned and faced his wife.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I cannot do it—goodness only knows I have tried my best, but I admit that I am beaten."

"Shame on you," cried his wife, "to think that after all those years of training your father gave you, you should fail at a task like this, no wonder you cannot make a success at your trade."

"But I have made a success—quite a success," pleaded the man, "never a week have you wanted for anything, but I am man enough to admit when I am beaten."

"Very well," replied his wife, "if you cannot do it, let me have a try and all I can say it is time you found another job."

Whereat the burglar's wife picked up the jimmy and proceeded to open the tin of sardines.

Adding Insult to Injury

SHE was that particular kind of woman who could be relied upon to say the wrong thing wherever she was.

At a recent dinner she turned to her neighbor and said:

"Doctor, can you tell me who that horrible-looking man is over there?"

"I can," replied the medical man. "That is my brother."

There was an awkward pause while the woman racked her brains for something to say. The doctor was enjoying her discomfiture.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she stammered, blushing. "How silly of me not to have seen the resemblance."

What He Went By

"THAT must be a powerful machine you've got there, sir," remarked the old rustic, gazing with awe and admiration at the red painted sports car by the roadside.

"Yes, she's a good old bus," returned the proud owner.

"She'd be about a hunner and fifty horsepower, I guess, eh, mister?"

"Oh dear, no!" laughed the motorist. "Only 20 horsepower. A high-powered car like you mention would be much larger."

"But I ain't reckonin' by size," expostulated the yokel. "I'm going by the smell!"

A Late Discovery

A MAN called at a solicitor's office to make arrangements for bringing an action for slander against a friend who had called him a wart-hog.

"When did this happen?" asked the solicitor.

"Three years ago."

"Three years ago? Then why on earth have you delayed so long?"

"I saw my first wart-hog yesterday."

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, July 6.—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if chili stand proprietors ever eat chili? Cass Gilbert, the architect. What became of jabberwocky? For rent: "Duplex Maisonette." Isn't that splendid? Those slim, plain tubular gowns with bright-flowered ornaments. Arthur Somers Roche, a Somerville (Mass.) boy, who made good in the city.

The ex-Follies girl who carries a lorgnette. Those salmon pink shirts with yard-long collar points. And the capsuled mustached boys they adorn. Part of the New York parade of nobodies dramatizing themselves. There should be no penalty for shooting a chauffeur who starts his car while you are in his path.

Modernistic pianos. Mae West, the actress. More jobs than ever for musicians now that many movies have an orchestra in the pit and on the stage. And feature those fidgety solo syncopaters. A cafe once known as the clearing house for white slave traffic.

Another one of those dingy little theaters where drama goes cockeyed. And horn-rimmed playwrights think great big thoughts. A Scotsman in kilts on a motorcycle—hoot, hoot, and putt, putt. The elegant new Boston buses. Constance Talmadge's ex-husband—whatshisname, the cigaret man.

The hard-boiled lads who drive mail trucks—and make your heart jump up and kiss your tonsils. Institutes to keep men fit. Fit for what? Mayor Walker's tailor. What a publicity break he received with his honor reputed the best-dressed man in New York. And he isn't by six city blocks.

Those millinery shops with autographed photos of actresses. And gushing plump proprietors who call customers "Mo-dom." Precocious children in half stockings who talk as worldly as the middle-aged. Hall Caine's son—Clarence Derwent, an actor. Charles McAdam, the singing salesman.

Red-faced jolly miller types who wait tables in the Broadway chop houses. John Clarke, the singer. The cry "Boat's in" among the taxi drivers and the race toward the pier. Chinese tourists who walk in groups—each with a camera. What's become of the fellow who used to scratch matches on his trousers?

Love of literature expressed in the booth of a Broadway cafe patronized by chorus girls: "I love Sunday morning so I can stay in bed and read the funnies."

A theatrical manager tells about a team of leap-and-catch dancers who appear almost au naturel, save for loin cloths of leopard skin. They have been appearing together for some years. Recently they quarreled on way to the theater. She stumbled and fell. It was her claim he was unchivalrous and made no effort to assist her. So, after a bitter scene, they separated. He probably was fed up on catching her all his life.

Another tale of the theater that interested me concerned six orchestra musicians. Their position in the deep pit is facing a blank wall. They were placed in the same positions during rehearsals. Consequently during a three months' run not one has ever seen the performance.

The vogue of the torch song in the mellowing haunts of Broadway is no more. The torch song was the lament of the disappointed lover—he or she was "carrying the torch." It was so named by Tommy Lyman, a pale young man with a thin whispering voice who has warbled his melancholy way around cabarets of the world.

I have heard Tommy sing his wistful songs in Kelly's on Houston street, at Luigi's bar in Paris, the Kit Kat in London and at private entertainments, and amid all the gaiety around him never saw him smile.

The next job I tackle—and judging by letters from various readers the date is not distant—I am going to have a secretary like the one I met this morning. He said his employer was not in, and added: "He was plastered last night and has the screaming-meemies." It was refreshing to hear that a man you could not see was not in conference.

Abandoning Force

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The great problem toward the solution of which civilization is gradually moving is the abandonment of force.

It is not a simple thing. It is not something that can be solved merely by a few idealists. It is complex and calls for all our common sense and patience.

The trouble is that every organized society at present has force as its ultimate basis. Every city has its policemen and courts and jails and the country has its army and navy.

We would all like to see these things done away with, but that is impossible at present. As an ideal toward which to work it is practical, but as a present thing it cannot be done.

The trouble is not only for other nations and other people, but it is ourselves.

The difficulty is that there are always among us militarists, imperialists, chauvinists and exploiters of force enough to produce constant irritation and offense toward other people. We cannot prevent corrupt newspapers from publishing unwarranted scares about other nations, and we cannot prevent outbreaks of race prejudice.

If we were all idealists and all pacifists the problem would be very easy. We could abandon force and appeal to the world to imitate us, and we would probably get away with it. But we are not idealists. There are too many people among us who yet confuse patriotism with bellicosity.

Therefore, we must work slowly and hopefully. Force is already abandoned to a large extent. Corporal punishment in public schools has largely been abandoned. Recently a Scotch teacher said he was surprised that American school children were rarely whipped. Horace Mann was bitterly denounced by school men for opposing corporal punishment.

A judge recently came out for whipping to be administered to criminals. But any reliance upon physical force tends to debase public morals. The teacher or parent who whips children, the policeman or sheriff that always gets his man, the soldier who kills with a bayonet—all of these are drags upon the progress of civilization.

The lynching bee is brutalizing, life at police headquarters puts a severe strain on fine character and nobody likes a public executioner's job.

We are outgrowing these exhibitions of physical force, but the change must be gradual. For everybody to realize the ideals of Christ is not impractical, but it takes time.

Evolution is slow and social evolution is one of the slowest things there is.

Let us resolutely set our face toward the ideal, but let us not forget that we are still faulty and that the heritage of the past is still with us.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

TWO pretty young things at dinner on a New York roof. The men with them are middle-aged and prosperous. The girls are young and dainty, and bored to distraction. If ever there were two perfect 18-year-old gold diggers here they are.

The meal half over, and so far as anybody could observe neither girl had said anything. Certainly they hadn't smiled. The men ordered the dinner, and the girls powdered their faces and waited for the food.

Then one man said something and the littlest girl brightened. She leaned toward him and almost laughed as she said: "Yes, sir, you promised to give me the money for those flowers and YOU NEVER DID!"

A little trick in black and white at another table, who wore out half a lip stick during the meal. She used it between courses, and held a small mirror before her while she pulled her curls out from under her hat, to improve the picture.

When the dessert came, she pouted, leaning over the table she looked at her escort and said: "Well, anyway, I think YOU OUGHT to do something for me. It wouldn't hurt you. You've never given me hardly anything!"

It's all under the same head—petty graft.

Like those ten, twenty, thirty girls, who take a beau home to supper, stop at the grocery and buy a lot of fancy olives, pickles, caviar and bottled artichokes. He pays, and then she scrambles him a few eggs for supper, and slides the fancy stuff on the top shelf of the pantryette.

Strange as it may seem, the fellow who buys the stuffed olives, is seldom there when they are opened.

But I knew of the other kind, out in Chicago, and she was forever saving pennies. As soon as she got $500 in the bank a sister got sick or a brother got into trouble, or her husband presented her with some bad debts, and she never got anything but the doubtful pleasure of being the family goat.

That girl ate at cafeterias alone for years, while her less canny friends ate what they wanted. She thought she was going to be old and broke some day and she was preparing for it. But someone near, if not dear to her, always got into trouble before she got old. Maybe it is her reward never to get old.

A Detroit woman and her husband are estranged. She permits him to do as he pleases for this price. Once a year he must send her and her daughters to Europe—tho both daughters are married. He must give her a very large allowance, and he has deeded over all his real estate to her. She doesn't care for him or anyone else, and she knows he is interested in another woman.

Last year it cost the man, according to the wife's boast, close to half a million, to keep his name out of the papers.
